Dear Rabbi Tannenbaum,

I am writing to confirm our discussion by telephone concerning our November 17 interfaith program at Canadian Jewish Congress. You are cordially invited to give the keynote address and facilitate the discussion.

A letter shall follow this written confirmation which will detail our objectives and program for the day.

I look forward indeed to working together with you, and extend my warmest good wishes to you for a happy and healthy summer.

Sincerely yours,

Robert Sternberg

Dear Rabbi Tannenbaum,

I hope that this letter finds you well and that you have enjoyed a pleasant summer.

I am writing to confirm our discussion by telephone regarding your visit to Montreal. Moe Seidman and Rabbi Allan Langner, my Chairman and Immediate Past Chairman respectively, have asked me to try and arrange with you to have the keynote address delivered the evening of November 16 instead of at a luncheon meeting. The luncheon itself will take place on November 17 as planned, but it will be for a much smaller group--just the members of our executive and the executive of our National Interfaith Committee--and, hence, more informal.

As we had agreed, your fee of $1,000.00 U.S. will be paid as well as your travel expenses, accommodations, etc.

One final request, as we would like to begin our publicity immediately, I would be very grateful if you could send me a biography and two or three photographs of yourself.

I look forward to hearing from you and hope that the above arrangements will meet with your approval.

Rabbi Langner asked me to convey his warmest personal regards.

Yours sincerely,

Rabbi Robert Sternberg
Director
