The Israel Education Fund is a program of the United Jewish Appeal initiated in September 1964 to meet acute building, personnel and equipment shortages in Israel's system of secondary education, particularly in the country's immigrant development towns. It seeks funds for the construction of high schools, libraries, community centers and pre-kindergarten schools, and for the establishment of scholarships for students and teachers in training. All schools, facilities and scholarships created by contributions to the IEF are owned, operated and administered by the United Israel Appeal, Inc., an American corporation.

Subject: NAZARET ILLIT

I wrote you before that our representative in Germany, Mr Kudler, is dealing very intensively now with the German Jewish Communities to realize their pledge to the Nazaret Illit School. However, they now say that Mr Sapir told them that they could postpone their pledge.

Mr Kudler, who is on a very short visit to Israel, was here yesterday and we discussed the matter. In the course of our discussions we came up with a suggestion which could perhaps advance the negotiations, and I think there is a good chance of our getting some good news in the near future.

I will, of course, keep you informed of further developments.

P.S. I hope that Rabbi Friedman and yourself are not against our trying to push this matter with the help of our representative.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR

to RALPH I. GOLDMAN
from ABRAHAM S. HYMAN
subject OPERATION OF IEF-FINANCED FACILITIES date FEBRUARY 6, 1968

1. The Problem

During Eliezer Shavit's recent visit here he asked for help in solving the problem presented by complying with instructions from the UJA and UIA lawyers in the operation of the IEF facilities. The problem was discussed in two sessions in which Gottlieb Hammer, Maurice Boukstein, Edward Goodell, Eliezer Shavit and I participated.

According to Shavit, the specific problem that is giving the Jewish Agency, as agent for the UIA, Inc., trouble is the requirement that the Jewish Agency or its sub-agents (the local committees, hereinafter mentioned) must hire the administrative, teaching and maintenance personnel for the schools.

Shavit pointed out that in each case where a school has been built a charitable trust has been set up under the Israel law (consisting of members of the Jewish Agency) which are entrusted with the supervisory control over the schools and that these charitable trusts have appointed local committees (usually consisting of the local boards of education) to deal with the day-to-day operations of the schools. The establishment of this machinery, as well as the registration of the schools in the names of UIA, Inc., have involved a lot of work but they are manageable and, once solved, are solved for good.

However, the hiring of personnel for the schools and all the housekeeping work related to maintaining staff, including keeping payroll records, paying the personnel, maintaining social security records, complying with Israel tax laws, etc., involves a tremendous amount of work and is a very costly operation.

The matter is further complicated by the fact that specialists, such as music teachers, psychologists, drama instructors, art teachers, medical personnel and others serve the entire community and move about from one school to another. On the one hand, it is uneconomical to hire staff that will work only in the IEF schools and, on the other hand, the problem of sharing in the employment of the roving staff and in maintaining separate records on such employees by both hiring units (assuming that the municipalities will agree to such arrangement) is, according to Shavit, an impossible one, not to speak of it being costly.

Moreover, the IEF schools must be integrated administratively into the overall school system since the teachers must be able to be moved from one school to another. This is particularly so because the local communities, in fact, supply most of the deficit budgets of the schools.

Finally, teachers accustomed to being hired by the local boards of education feel that they do not have job security and tenure and miscellaneous benefits as employees of the government if they are engaged by a private organization.

Memo to RIG from ASH (Cont'd)

All these problems, applicable to the operation of the schools, are aggravated when applied to the pre-kindergarten schools. Many of the IEF schools are the only secondary schools in the communities while the pre-kindergarten schools are in each instance situated in communities where there are some or many other pre-kindergarten schools. While there might be some rationale for incurring the tremendous expense in setting up a separate system of hiring personnel, and maintaining a complete record system on them, for a large school, there is no justification for doing so in the case of a two-class pre-kindergarten school which logically belongs to the pre-kindergarten complex of the community.

2. Pertinent provisions of UJA and JAFI, Inc., letter of May 4, 1964, requesting a ruling that contributions to the IEF projects will be tax exempt and of IRS letter of September 24, 1964 containing the ruling.

a) The letter of May 4, 1964 provides inter-alia, the following:

"The Project (the IEF Project) will also operate the schools and other facilities and administer the scholarship funds."

"In connection with the administration of the Project, it may become necessary, for reasons of administrative convenience, to form in Israel one or more corporate entities as charitable trusts. The Domestic Corporation (the JAFI, Inc., now UJA, Inc.) through its operating agent, the ~~DOMESTIC~~ Agency, will in each case control such corporate entities. The Agency, acting on behalf of the Domestic Organization, may find it necessary to form local committees in areas where the Project's schools are located in order to cope with local problems to assure maximum cooperation on behalf of the local community and of the parents. Such corporate entities may hire the school personnel and engage other services required for the running of the schools."

"The operating income of the schools will be derived from the same sources that any other private secondary school in Israel derives income: (1) tuition paid by student, (2) tuition paid by the Israeli Government and by municipalities as scholarships for students, (3) subsidies from the Government of Israel and municipalities, (4) grants by private and public organizations and (5) grants by individuals."

b. The letter of September 24, 1964, granting tax exempt status to gifts contributed to the UJA for the benefit of the IEF, provides the following:

"Based strictly upon the facts submitted in your letter dated May 4, 1964, the activities proposed to be undertaken by the United Jewish Appeal, Inc. and the Jewish Agency for Israel, Inc. and the method of operation described, appear to be contemplated by Revenue Ruling 63-252, and thus will not affect the exempt status of the United Jewish Appeal, Inc."

"The building and operation of the schools and administration of the scholarship programs by the Agency will also include responsibility, as an agent, for the hiring of necessary personnel to carry out the various programs."

3. Conclusions reached by Boukstein and Goodell

- a) Both lawyers took the position that a key sentence in the IRS letter of September 24, 1964 is the following: "Based strictly upon the facts submitted in your letter of May 4, 1964", contending that the IEF operation must conform strictly to the procedure outlined in the joint letter of May 4, 1964.
- b) Both lawyers agreed that the local operating committees appointed by the charitable trusts may accept from the local governments the services of the maintenance personnel as "subsidies from the Government of Israel and municipalities", and that this was permissible within the terms of the representation in the joint letter that "The Project...through Agency personnel will also operate the schools and other facilities" and within the terms of the IRS statement in its letter that "The building and operation of the schools...by the Agency will also include responsibility, as an agent, for the hiring of necessary personnel to carry out the various programs."
- c) Both lawyers agreed that the local committees could not accept the teachers hired by the local municipalities since the hiring of teachers goes to the very essence of an operation of a school. In this context it was noted that it is proper under our procedure for the local committees to receive the entire budget for the school, including the budget for the teachers' salaries, from the local government and/or from the national government. The lawyers made a distinction between the services of the maintenance staff and that of the teachers on the ground that the former are not related to the operation of the school while the latter are.
- d) At one point it was suggested that an agreement might be reached with the local governments that the services of the teachers would be treated as offered by the local governments -- for the local committees to accept or reject -- and that the teachers could, at the direction of the local committees, be discharged. This might serve as a device <sup>for</sup> having the local committees retain ultimate control over the selection of the teachers and ultimate control over their employment. No decision was reached as to whether this would be in compliance with the procedure outlined in the letter of May 4, 1964 and in the letter of September 24, 1964.
- e) In view of the position taken by Shavit that unless the teacher problem is solved with respect to schools and, especially, to pre-kindergartens, the operation of these facilities will become too costly and too cumbersome, the question was raised whether to present the matter to the IRS for a ruling as to whether the Agency might accept from the local governments the teachers hired by them. On this issue Goodell said that he thought it was inadvisable to go to the IRS for a ruling now since the IRS might use the occasion to open questions relating to the Israel Emergency Fund. Goodell, therefore, said that because of the risks involved he would advise the WJA not to present the matter to the IRS at this time.

Boukstein took the position that he would not advise the UIA, Inc. either to go or not to go to the IRS for a ruling. All he would do would be to point out the risks of going to the IRS and that the UIA, Inc. would have to decide for itself, as a matter of policy, whether it would take the risk. I am not sure that he was afraid the presentation of the question might jeopardize the Israel Emergency Fund, but he did say the IRS might ask how the schools have managed until now and we would have to admit that a number of IEF schools (the Rokman School, the Perkauf School and the Pimona School) had been operating with teachers employed by the local governments.

In view of the position taken by Boukstein, Hammer called Dewey Stone and Eddie Ginsberg and asked them their views on presenting the matter to the IRS. Hammer reported to the group that Eddie was in favor of going and that Dewey was against it. Throughout the two conferences Hammer expressed himself as being in favor of going to the IRS with the problem.

to RALPH I. GOLDMAN

subject Personal views on the teacher problem involved in the operation of the IEF schools:

Date February 6, 1968

In a separate memorandum I have summarized the discussions held by Shavit, Boukstein, Goodell, Hammer and me regarding the operations of the IEF schools.

I should like to indicate my personal views on (1) whether it is necessary to go to the IRS for a ruling on the teacher question and (2) if it is determined that it is necessary, whether the UJA should direct its counsel to go to the IRS for a ruling as to the propriety of accepting teachers hired by the local governments.

I would ask that this memorandum be kept confidential. It is intended only for you, Friedman and Ginsberg. The reason I make this request is that I do not want to jeopardize my good relations with Goodell and Boukstein, who, if they read this memorandum, would think that I am trying to counsel the UJA on a question of law. I have no intention of doing that. I am writing this memorandum only because I think that the conclusions reached by Boukstein and Goodell are wrong and thought that you might want to have the benefit of my views when discussing the matter with Goodell.

In the first place, I disagree with the starting premise which Goodell and Boukstein have adopted; namely, that every fact relative to the operation of the IEF projects stated in the letters of May 4, 1964, and September 24, 1964, is of crucial importance. Thus, I do not believe that the fact that we say that the "corporate entities may hire the school personnel and engage other services for the running of the schools" and that the IRS says that the "operation of the schools will also include responsibility...for the hiring of necessary personnel to carry out the various programs" means that the Agency, through the local committees must actually do the hiring of the personnel and that this is a sine qua non to eligibility for the tax exempt status of IEF gifts.

I realize that what I am about to say is a matter of pure speculation but I have the feeling that the reason the IRS made reference to the hiring of the personnel is that it was merely reciting the essential facts on the operation of the schools which were set forth in our letter of May 4, 1968, and that the recitation of this fact did not mean that the tax exempt status of gifts to the IEF was conditioned upon the hiring of the personnel by the Agency.

In any event, in agreeing that the Agency may accept the maintenance personnel from the local government even Goodell and Boukstein have admitted, at least in part, that the references to the hiring of personnel were not crucial, since if they were the Agency would not be able to accept such personnel---for the language of the IRS makes no distinction between teaching personnel and maintenance personnel.

My own views on the matter are governed by my recognition of the fundamental rule that applies to contributions to a domestic organization for use abroad; namely, that the domestic organization may not act as a conduit for a foreign organization. So long as the domestic organization has control over the expenditure of the funds, owns the facility built with the funds, and controls the operation of the facility, there is compliance with the requirements of the IRS. Accordingly, I believe that the fact that the Agency accepts the teachers supplied by the municipalities is not crucial and does not mean that the Agency has no control over the teachers. This is particularly so if the Agency would make it a matter of record with each municipality that the list of teachers must be submitted to the Agency for approval and that the ultimate control over the teachers must rest with the Jewish Agency.

In this context it should be pointed out that it is unrealistic to believe that circumstances would exist that the local municipalities would hire teachers of which the Agency would not approve, that they would retain teachers that, in the judgment of the Agency, should not be retained, or that they would retain teachers that the Agency would ask to be discharged.

What is realistic is that the Agency does not really want to run the schools and that it would not interfere in any sense with the hiring or firing of the personnel. What is needed is some formula that will satisfy the requirements of the IRS and, if it is established by some written agreement between the Agency and the municipalities that teachers are offered to the Agency to accept or reject and that the municipalities will discharge the teachers at the request of the Agency, there would be substantial compliance with the rule that the UJA, Inc., must through its agent own and control the facility.

It is my further view that the above arrangement, if carried out, would involve us in no risk of losing our tax exempt status. Either one of three possibilities exist:

1. That the operations of the IEF are never audited by the IRS and that therefore the question will never be raised.
2. That the operations of the IEF are audited by the IRS and that the above arrangement are held to be substantial compliance with the IRS requirements.
3. That the operations of the IEF are audited and that the IRS will find non-compliance. It is inconceivable that in these circumstances the IRS would ask the UJA to forfeit its tax exempt status because of this type of departure from the requirements. The worst that could possibly happen is that the IRS will insist that in the future there shall be compliance and that the Agency shall actually hire the teachers, maintain separate records, etc.

I, therefore, take the view that we can lose nothing by taking the above measures, which would amount to substantial compliance with the requirements of the IRS.

Should it be decided, however, that we should take no risk and take no steps without consultation with the IRS it is my further view that we may with safety go to the IRS for a ruling on the issue whether we may accept as teachers the persons hired by the local governments.

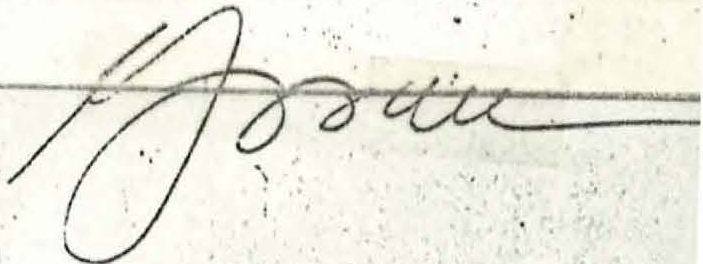

Goodell says that he is opposed to presenting the matter to the IRS because of Israel Emergency Fund--that is, because the IRS might raise some questions about the use of the money raised in this Fund. When Goodell made this point Hammer responded--and I am in full agreement with him--that the IRS is free to inquire into operations regarding the Israel Emergency Fund, whether we do or do not go to the IRS for a ruling on the IRS. It is not conceivable that the IRS is waiting for someone to come from the UJA for the clarification of a problem in order to raise the question of the propriety of Israel Emergency Fund. If the IRS suspects that the contributions to the Israel Emergency Fund might not be entitled to a tax exempt status it will raise that question irrespective of what the IEF might do or not do.

Accordingly, I believe that we may safely go to the IRS for a ruling without fear of involving the Israel Emergency Fund. Moreover, even if questions about the Emergency Fund are raised, we should be in the position to answer them to the satisfaction of the IRS and, if we have any fear on this score, we should certainly take precautionary measures now to clear the contributions to the Israel Emergency Fund of any doubt as to their tax deductibility.

Nor do I have any fear that we may be compelled to disclose the manner in which we have been operating the IEF schools to date. We could easily take the position that what we are doing is in our judgment, a substantial compliance with the requirements of the IRS ruling, that this was an interim arrangement, and that, in view of the expansion of our operations, we had come for guidance.

I cannot conceive that the IRS would punish American Jewry by pronouncing that because we had not hired the teachers for the schools the tax exempt status of the UJA would be withdrawn. The fear that such thing might happen is neither flattering to the U.S. government nor to the position of American Jewry. This fear and the position taken by Boukstein that he will give no advice on this matter (whether to go or not to go)--and thus throw the responsibility for making the decision on his client (because, according to Boukstein, this is a matter of policy and not of law)--is, in my judgment, an instance of ultr-conservatism, and shows a lack of faith in the moral strength of the UJA that I find unwarranted.

My counsel would, therefore, be in the alternative: (1) that we do not go to the IRS for a ruling but accept the teachers from the municipalities on the conditions outlined above or (2) if it be decided that alternative (1) would involve us in a risk that we should not take, then we should go to the IRS and put the question before it.

Dear Charles:

Somebody sent me a list of the schools, libraries, and community centers built or underway in the swinging little country that is the social test tube for the West.

As Helen and I talked over the list, trying to recall names and places, we marvelled at the accomplishment. And we are now of the opinion that when someday the grandchildren ask us what difference we ever made to mankind, we shall say, casually, that we were part of the original mission of the Israel Education Fund of the United Jewish Appeal. We shall not explain how tenuous was our connection. We'll just state it as the great fact of our lives.

Cordially,

We have examined the financial statements of the Israel Education Fund of the United Jewish Appeal, Inc. from inception to December 31, 1967. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

The Israel Education Fund was instituted for the purpose of raising funds for specific educational capital projects and scholarship programs in Israel. The campaign began in 1964, and is operated by a separate department of United Jewish Appeal, Inc. The pledges are to be secured selectively over and above the nominal giving of the solicited contribution and may be paid over a 5 year period. The results of the operations are predicated on the amounts received in partial or full liquidation of pledges.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Israel Education Fund of the United Jewish Appeal, Inc. as at December 31, 1967, and the results of its operations from inception to December 31, 1967, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied consistently with that of preceding years.

CONFERENCE WITH ADRIAN DEWIND ON IEF TEACHER PROBLEM

On March 18, 1968, Ralph Goldman and I met with Adrian DeWind and discussed with him the problem the IEF has with the operation of the schools built with IEF funds.

It is DeWind's opinion that while accepting maintenance staff (janitors, repairmen, etc.) from the municipalities is a "whittling away" at the concept of control, the function of such staff does not go to the heart of the operation of a school and, therefore, is probably O.K.

DeWind feels as do Goodell and Boukstein, that the acceptance of teachers who are hired by the municipalities is another matter. He cannot presently envision a form of presentation that could be made to the Internal Revenue Service that would secure its approval of the acceptance of teachers who are hired by the local governments. He, therefore, advises against going to the Treasury Department; not because of the fear of losing but because of the certainty of not winning.

We then discussed ways of reducing the risk of having the practice of accepting teachers from the local communities disapproved by the Internal Revenue Service in the event the operating procedure of the IEF is audited by the IRS. In this context we suggested to DeWind that it might be possible to work out an arrangement under which the contract of employment of the teachers could be between the charitable trusts created by the Jewish Agency and the teachers in which it could be stated that the teacher is an employee of the charitable trust, subject to the control of the charitable trust (including the right to be discharged for incompetence or other reasons) but that the teacher will receive her salary from the local government and carried on the books of the local government for social security purposes, etc. De Wind thought this was still in violation of the IRS requirements, but suggested that inasmuch as we seemed to have no alternative but to work out some arrangement that would show an attempt at substantial compliance with the IRS requirements, we should do everything possible to give that appearance. I agreed to draw up a list of steps that would be taken to show this attempt.

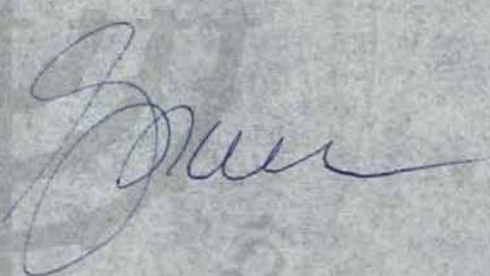

We then discussed the risk to the UJA of having the procedure we would adopt disapproved by the IRS. Would such disapproval jeopardize the tax exempt status of the UJA and the tax deductibility of the gift to the IEF?

DeWind was rather certain that the tax deductibility of the individual gift would not be affected since the taxpayer had made the gift to the UJA on the basis of the published list by the IRS that gifts to the UJA were tax deductible.

In the course of the discussion of the possible effect of such disapproval on the tax exempt status of the UJA I suggested to DeWind that inasmuch as the amounts the UJA receives for the benefit of the Israel Education Fund is a small part of the overall receipts of the UJA, the rule of de minimus might apply. De Wind reacted favorably toward this angle and thought that this might provide the answer to the problem. In any event, he suggested that if we had to accept the teachers provided by the local communities and could not set up our own system of bookkeeping and control over the teachers we should do everything we can to show an attempt at substantial compliance.

After the meeting Ralph Goldman and I agreed that I should prepare the list of things that might be done to show an attempt at substantial compliance; that he would take the list with him to Israel and discuss it with the Israel authorities, and that upon his return from Israel we would call a meeting of Goodell, Boukstein and DeWind and discuss this problem anew.

Dear Friend:

In 44 months of unparalleled philanthropy on behalf of education, donors to the Israel Education Fund of the United Jewish Appeal have established 44 high schools. Ten of them are in operation, 14 under construction, the others in active planning. Our donors have also established 36 related cultural facilities - seven public libraries, 15 community centers and 14 pre-kindergartens. All 80 of these projects will be operative before the end of this decade.

We have reached this level of effectiveness because farsighted men and women - the elite of our community, people like you - have continued to come forward, even in the face of the gravest immediate emergency conditions, to meet Israel's long-range education needs. Since the end of the Six Day War, after fulfilling their maximum obligations to the UJA Emergency Fund, such individuals have pledged sponsorship of 18 new facilities and a number of crucial teacher-training and student scholarships with contributions totaling more than $2,000,000.

These 18 added facilities will keep the master plan for high school construction exactly on schedule; will give Israel's program of adding 5,000 children annually to its pre-school enrollment a fine head start; and will provide pilot projects for an ambitious community center program designed to wipe out adult illiteracy and juvenile delinquency while unifying the disparate populations of all immigrant towns and sectors.

Clear and encouraging as the effectiveness of our program has been, it is equally clear that we must do much, much more. We must understand the import of a terse and powerful statement by Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir in his message to the Knesset: "The soldiers of Israel are for the most part products of our educational system." We must help make that system, especially in its all-important high school years, fully productive of all the skills the people of Israel will need in facing any challenge, under any conditions.

*Deceased

We must also understand, and take as a mandate, Prime Minister Levi Eshkol's declaration last August to the preliminary economic conference: that to increase Israel's Gross National Product between nine and 10 per cent each year for the next ten years, to create a cadre of a third of a million skilled workers, technicians and scientists who will assure that level of increase... it will be necessary to double the country's total secondary education facilities.

In the face of a goal of that magnitude, we have only begun to do our job: only begun to bridge the gap in educational opportunity between Israel's Sephardic and Ashkenazi children, only begun to combat a dropout rate and levels of illiteracy and delinquency which are still disturbingly high, only begun to supply Israel's high schools with the thousands of qualified teachers needed.

Today, six months after my last report to you, I find that I must repeat what I wrote then - perhaps even more urgently: our job, though well begun, is only half done. We have maintained our Education Fund momentum during the first months of this extended emergency period..... but simply maintaining our pace will not be enough. To get the job done as it should be done, we must work harder and build more in 1968, in 1969 and for many years to come.

Sincerely,

Charles J. Bensley

Hon. Pinchas Sapir
Minister of Finance
Ministry of Finance
Jerusalem, Israel

Dear Mr. Minister:

Mr. Phillip Stollman of Detroit has expressed a very encouraging interest in establishing a religious high school with an Israel Education Fund gift of about $250,000. He has referred to this intention as his "unofficial commitment."

As you know, he will be arriving in Israel very shortly and will be honored at the dedication on May 29 of the Stollman Administration Building at the Bar-Ilan University, a ceremony in which you are scheduled to participate.

I believe that Mr. Stollman is completely prepared to make his commitment "official" before he leaves Israel, and we are asking Eliezer Shavit to show him suitable projects. I know that a 7772 in from you will please Phillip Stollman and would encourage him to make his decision about a specific location for his school.

Mr. Stollman is arriving in Israel on May 24. Shavit has been alerted to contact him immediately, and we have supplied him and his advisors with a priority list of religious high schools.

Sincerely,

Ralph I. Goldman

Mr. & Mrs. Emanuel Ebin
 1070 Park Avenue
 New York, New York

Dear Mr. & Mrs. Ebin:

We acknowledge with deep appreciation your generous pledge of $300,000 to the Israel Education Fund project of The United Jewish Appeal, Inc.

This letter will summarize the information previously given to you concerning the project and set forth our understanding as to your pledge.

1. The United Jewish Appeal, Inc. ("UJA") is a New York membership corporation, organized and operated exclusively for charitable purposes. It has been accorded tax exempt status under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, and contributions made to it are deductible under Section 170 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. By letter dated September 24, 1964 addressed to Adrian W. DeWind and bearing reference designation "T:R:I-ARI-TF3", a copy of which is enclosed, the Treasury Department has ruled that UJA's status under Sections 501(c)(3) and 170 will not be affected by the Israel Education Fund project (the "Project").

2. The Project has been undertaken because of the pressing need for giving the children of recent immigrants to Israel, particularly those of Asian and African origin, the benefit of secondary school education. Because there is a scarcity of secondary schools in Israel, because the children of the more recent immigrants of Asian and African origin do not have the financial resources to attend secondary schools, and because there is a shortage of adequately trained teachers, the Project's primary goals are to provide secondary school facilities, secondary school scholarships, and teachers' scholarships.

3. (a) UJA and the United Israel Appeal, Inc. (formerly The Jewish Agency for Israel, Inc. and hereafter referred to as "UIA") have made a study of the problem and have determined that there is an urgent and immediate need for a secondary school of engineering in Beersheba, Israel.

(b) Accordingly UJA and UIA have decided that such a secondary school (hereafter referred to as "The School") should be constructed at Beersheba, Israel and that The School should be built in two stages, for convenience hereafter called the "First Stage" and the "Final Stage."

(c) The First Stage will consist of the building and facilities described in Schedule A hereto annexed and the Final Stage will consist of the additions to the said building and facilities constituting the First Stage that are described in Schedule B hereto annexed.

4. At our invitation you have pledged a gift of $300,000 to UJA. UJA and UIA intend to use this fund toward the cost of construction of the First Stage of The School as hereafter provided.

5. We confirm our agreement that your said pledge of $300,000 will be paid by you to us as follows:

(a) The sum of $50,000 on or before May 25, 1968.

(b) The balance of $250,000 on or before the 25th day of September 1973.

6. (a) In accordance with existing procedures, summarized in the enclosed Treasury Department ruling, the funds collected by us, pursuant to this agreement, will be transmitted by us to UJA and by it to UIA, together with a copy of this letter and UIA will apply the funds so received as hereinafter provided and, in connection therewith, will exercise exclusive supervision and control over the expenditure of such funds through its agent in Israel (The Jewish Agency for Israel in Jerusalem) including supervision of the construction of The School and related facilities as herein provided.

(b) The land required for the various facilities constructed as a result of the conduct of the Project is obtained by UIA from the Israeli authorities and no part of the funds derived from your pledge will be applied to the acquisition thereof.

7. (a) The plans and specifications for The School will be prepared by architects who are licensed and engaged in practice in Israel and who will be selected by the UIA as promptly as is reasonably possible after the signing of this letter. The preparation of the plans and specifications will begin as soon as is reasonably practical after the selection of said architects as aforesaid and the receipt of the aforesaid sum of $50,000.

(b) Constuction of the First Stage of The School by UIA will commence as soon as is reasonably practicable after the plans and specifications have been approved by UIA and, in reliance upon your pledge, will be diligently prosecuted thereafter by UIA. UIA undertakes that it will construct the First Stage as set forth in Schedule A, it being understood that in no event shall you be required to pay more than $300,000 as your share of the cost of constructing the said First Stage.

(c) UIA undertakes that the Final Stage of The School will be constructed when the additions, described in Schedule B, to the building and facilities constituting the First Stage are reasonably required for the proper conduct of The School.

8. (a) The legal title to and the ownership of The School will be vested in UIA.

(b) UIA, in addition to compliance with the provisions of paragraphs 6(a) and 8(a) above, will otherwise observe and comply with the provisions of the said Treasury Department ruling dated September 24, 1964 applicable to the construction, ownership and operation of The School.

9. (a) It is agreed that The School will be known as the "Emanuel and Helen Ebin School of Engineering" and that said name will be permanently placed on the structure at the main entrance of The School.

(b) A plaque to be affixed in a prominent place on the structure will state that The School was constructed with funds contributed to the Israel Education Fund of UJA by Emanuel and Helen Ebin.

(c) A special boulder, selected by the said architects as appropriate in shape, size and color in relation to the building constituting the First Stage, shall be placed in the courtyard leading to the main entrance of The School, which said boulder shall have carved upon it or bear upon it a plaque with words to the effect that The School is the "Emanuel and Helen Ebin School of Engineering."

(d) It is understood and agreed that the contributor or contributors of funds required for the construction of the Final Stage will be memorialized by a plaque or plaques placed in or on the Final Stage indicating that the Final Stage was constructed with funds contributed to the Project by such other contributor or contributors. It is agreed, of course, that The School in its entirety shall continue to be known at all times as the Emanuel and Helen Ebin School of Engineering and that the name or names of such contributors to the Final Stage will be displayed by plaque in such manner that the size, location and content thereof shall clearly indicate that the same refers to the component parts of the Final Stage.

10. It is agreed that you have the option of electing to contribute the additional amount for the construction of the Final Stage upon the following terms and conditions:

(a) As and when the UIA determines that the Final Stage shall be constructed it shall give you notice in writing addressed to you by registered mail at the above address advising you that it has made said determination and stating the amount that was required for the completion of the First Stage in excess of the amount of $300,000 and the amount required for the construction of the Final Stage.

(b) It is agreed that although the amount that was required for the completion of the First Stage in excess of $300,000 and the amount required for the construction of the Final Stage may, in the aggregate, exceed the sum of $100,000, the exercise of the option as hereinafter provided shall not require the contribution of more than $100,000.

(c) Within thirty days after the date of the mailing of said notice you have the right to notify UIA in writing addressed to it by registered mail at 515 Park Avenue, New York City, that you have elected to exercise said option to contribute the additional amount stated in the aforesaid notice to you from UIA not exceeding, however, the sum of $100,000.

(d) Payment of the sum required for the exercise of the option, in the event you exercise the option as herein provided, shall be made in five equal annual installments, the first of which shall be paid within one year after the exercise of the option as herein provided and the remainder of which shall be paid consecutively each year thereafter.

(e) In the event that you fail to exercise the option aforesaid as herein provided, UIA shall have the right to accept contributions for the construction of the Final Stage from other contributors but in no event shall the amount required to be paid by such other contributors be less than the sum of $100,000.

11. This agreement shall be construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York.

If the foregoing correctly states your agreement with UJA, please sign and date the enclosed copy of this letter and return the signed copy to us.

Dated: New York, New York

TO: Mr. Herbert A. Friedman
FROM: Ralph I. Goldman
SUBJECT:

DATE: August 7, 1968

1. I listened to the detailed description of your meetings with the candidates for the IEF position and now am waiting to hear what was the outcome of your conversations with Barzilai and Harel.

2. I tried to eliminate the visit to Denmark prior to the Mission. Both Herlitz and Seehusen were prepared to cooperate but the matter was no longer in their hands since Princess Margrethe had been requested to receive "an Israeli group" and Seehusen and Esther were waiting for a reply. I had indicated that we would be pleased to receive a negative reply but yesterday I received the following cable from Esther:

הנסיכה נאמה לקיץ סגורה למסעות קיץ המיועד אחרי
הסיווגים תבצע אצות קטן ארצות האחרות אם בשנה
היוס של אחרת דנארק זיליאל. אלה זה אחייק אלה אהרובי
אחרת נבדד.

Consequently, Charlie and some of the Denmark school participants will have to visit Denmark prior to the Mission in Israel.

3. The Denmark* school participants will take part in the events in Jerusalem in accordance with the detailed plans we discussed at Kfar Maccabia.

The only other affair scheduled to date for IEF donors is the dedication of the Feinstein library. Rosalie Feinstein knows that the Mission leadership will not be able to participate.

There are 3 other donors who would like to have an IEF ceremony during their visit to Israel with the Mission. They are:

- |                        |                     |
|------------------------|---------------------|
| Dr. Sidney Edelstein - | Kiryat Shemona      |
| Mr. Samuel Melton      | Bat Yam School      |
| Mr. Abraham Shiffman   | Tirat Carmel School |

I would appreciate your guidance and help in how to deal with these requests.

4. Since my return to New York City, we have settled a $300,000 gift from the Everetts of Brooklyn for the Comprehensive School in Acre.

At the suggestion of Jennie Jones we sent a letter from Charlie to the Hausers in Detroit and we have now received word from them that they are definitely interested in an IEF project.

Rosenwald is proceeding with his plan to visit relative in Luxembourg and we have prepared material for him for a million dollar solicitation.

We expect to receive an initial payment in excess of $350,000 on account of the Zarin estate sometime within the next 4 weeks.

I am seeing Rogow in Hartford on Thursday primarily as a follow up on the (Sapir) Israel Corporation Ltd. matter but I shall, of course, have an opportunity to initiate discussion about the IEF.

TO: Mr. Herbert A. Friedman (continued)      DATE: August 7, 1968

FROM: Ralph I. Goldman

SUBJECT:

5. I met with Charlie after my return and gave him a complete report on my discussion with you. I also explained to him Shavit's request in re: his status with the IEF and Charlie is amenable to any changes you may suggest.

My plans are still the same as we discussed when we met. We are leaving by ship to Europe on August 20 and will arrive in Israel by air from Paris on August 26.

If Rosenwald decides that he would like to have me meet with his prospect, I shall postpone my date of arrival in Israel.

I shall be back in the States on September 15.

Mr. L. Jesselson
350 Park Avenue
New York, N. Y. 10022

Dear Mr. Jesselson:

In confirmation of our conversations of recent date, I am recording below the facts we have established concerning the construction of your Educational Center for Girls in Jerusalem, and the financing of that construction.

1. Construction of the first stage has begun under a contractors' bid of IL 2,500,000. The total of additional fees and costs is IL 450,000, making a total first stage cost of IL 2,950,000.

2. Of this sum, IL 2,330,000 (the equivalent of $666,666.67 at current rate of exchange) has been pledged by the Matanah Foundation and by you.

3. An additional IL 500,000 has been guaranteed by sources within Israel.

4. A first stage construction cost deficit exists of IL 120,000.

5. A second stage of construction, described to you in previous correspondence, will be needed.

6. The designated cost of the second stage of construction is IL 415,000.

7. The total sum needed to assure full construction, therefore, is IL 535,000.

8. It is the wish and intention of all factors that there be no pause in overall construction.

9. Toward this end, the Municipality of Jerusalem, at my request, has guaranteed a sum of IL 250,000.

10. Toward this end, you have indicated that you would provide the balance needed by raising the combined pledge of the Matanah Foundation and yourself to $750,000.

11. I have requested that our representative in Israel order work specifications for the second stage of construction immediately and have been assured that the 2nd stage will be completed at the same time as the first.

*Deceased

12. You will not be called upon for any additional funds for this Center.

I would like to take this opportunity, on behalf of the officers and staff of the Israel Education Fund, to thank you for your intention of assuming the additional obligation involved. Continuous construction is now assured and the Center will be one of Israel's major secondary education facilities. We join you in looking forward to its swift completion and will keep you regularly informed about its progress.

With best wishes for the New Year to you and your family and G'mar Hatima Tova.

Sincerely,

SUBJECT: FURST ESTATE

DATE: October 28, 1968

I expect to be covering the following points in a telephone conversation with you this morning but, in view of the importance of the subject matter, I am taking this additional means of confirming them.

In a telephone conversation from Israel yesterday, Ralph Goldman, responding to cables sent last week concerning current negotiations with the trustees of the Furst Estate in Boston, gave me the following message for you:

1. The question of the Furst Estate has been turned over to Mr. Dinstein of the Finance Ministry. Mr. Dinstein has been out of Israel and is expected back today at which time Mr. Goldman will contact him.
2. Mr. Goldman has arranged to see Mr. Sapir today, will discuss the matter with him and you will undoubtedly be informed.
3. Mr. Goldman has seen both Edward Ginsberg and Herbert A. Friedman and discussed the matter with them. He reports that both emphatically expressed the desire to work out a deal in the best interests of Israel and want to assure you of this basic intention which harmonizes with yours.
4. Mr. Ginsberg and Mr. Friedman are not clear, however, about the extent to which the community in Boston has been apprised of the arrangement suggested by Mr. Novack. The UJA is ready to go to the community openly about any arrangement decided upon.
5. Beyond your expressed general apprehension, the UJA leaders do not fully understand why the Wednesday meeting with the trustees is so critical that a decision on agreeing in principle with the suggested arrangement must be made at this time by cable and transoceanic telephone. If there is a concrete and cogent reason why the decision cannot wait for Ralph Goldman's return on November 12, they would like to be informed.
6. Meanwhile, they suggest that advice of UJA counsel be followed in all matters concerning the Wednesday meeting, including the question of whether or not it is to be held.
7. On behalf of the UJA leaders and of the Israel Education Fund, Mr. Goldman wants me to repeat the assurance that they want to do everything in their power to work things out.

Memorandum

to Mr. Charles J. Bensley

from David Mark

subject Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Leir

date November 4, 1968

Bill Rosenwald has informed us through the New York UJA office that he got the following telephone message from Mr. Henry J. Leir last Thursday:

"My wife and I are signing our will and are leaving $500,000 each to the United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York, which is to be reduced by any gifts or enforceable pledges made to UJA after October 1, 1968."

When asked by the New York office if this gift was earmarked for IEF or in any other way, Bill said it was a straight bequest to UJA. The language of the message, however, seems to leave an opening. It might be advisable for you to check with Bill about this.

FROM: David Mark DM
SUBJECT: FURST ESTATE

DATE: November 5, 1968

According to Herbert Rose, the trustees of the Furst Estate last Wednesday told Mr. Novack, the attorney acting for the Economics Ministry, that:

1. In lieu of compensation they would normally have received for assigning the assets of the estate over a period of years, they would like to receive the following compensation from UJA/IEF:

Mr. David Love (age 33): $6,000 per year to age 65.
His father (age 65): $6,000 per year to age 75.
Third trustee (age 71): $4,000 per year to age 75.
Fourth trustee (age 72): $4,000 per year to age 75.

Rose computes this at a total cost of $280,000.

2. The trustees wish to be appointed as consultants to the IEF. Whether this applies to the project or projects established with the estate's funds or is more general is not yet clear. Whether or not the above sums are to be considered as consultants' salaries is also not yet clear. Both points are apparently subject to discussion.

3. This transaction is to be a matter of public record, established through a court and with the full knowledge of the community in Boston.

4. The trustees have said that they would make a first payment of $300,000 in the Spring of 1969 and that the exact balance available to IEF will be established after a ruling on the Federal estate tax which must be paid. No indication was given of when that ruling may be expected, but it will probably not be given before the Spring of 1969.

5. The trustees expressed a desire to see you in New York at the end of this month to discuss the matter.

Mr. Julius A. Hellenbrand
Sharf and Hellenbrand
120-10 Queens Boulevard
Kew Gardens 15, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Hellenbrand:

Our telephone conversation yesterday was quite helpful in clarifying some of the pending contractual points in the matter of the agreement being drawn up between the co-donors, Mr. Simon J. Messitte and the National Committee for the Furtherance of Jewish Education, and the Israel Education Fund of the United Jewish Appeal. I have reported the substance of our talk to our counsel, Mr. Edward Goodell, and our responses at this time are as follows:

1. In the matter of the equal responsibility of the co-donors in the gift, at $150,000 each, it becomes necessary for our counsel to be made aware of the corporate nature and structure of the Committee, its resources and the locus of its financial responsibility, in order to re-draft the provisions of the agreement intelligibly.

2. The Committee's desire to have dormitories and electronics and computer laboratories included among units to be built at the school is a matter for discussion with the authorities in Israel who are planning the units and curriculum at the school. Our files fail to show any reference to plans for the above units but we will be glad to make inquiries about them at your request.

3. The assignment to the Committee of the lease or deed to the land on which the school is to be built would seem to be in violation of the operating procedure under which our tax exempt status is established and protected, and, therefore, not possible under this agreement.

4. The UJA cannot undertake to pay, or guarantee the payment of, salaries for teachers or other school staff members, or of maintenance costs, responsibility for which lies elsewhere.

5. Mr. Messitte's desire to have the contractual right to request the emplacement of plaques containing the names of other persons on first-stage building units can probably be accommodated.

6. Rabbi Jacob J. Hecht's name will be correctly rendered and his position as Executive Vice-President of the Committee correctly stated in the final agreement.

Mr. Julius A. Hellenbrand

7. The desired clause covering arrangements for the Committee's summer use of the school's facilities is subject to question, since the accommodation of American, rather than Israeli, students is outside of, and probably in technical violation of, the Israel Education Fund's legal functions.

8. Mr. Goodell, who drew up our contract with Mr. Oscar Gruss, would be happy to consider Mr. Messitte's request that his terms in this agreement coincide with Mr. Gruss' terms, but he requires a more specific description of what is being requested.

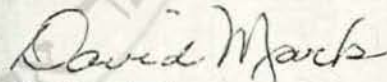

For your guidance in responding to the above, and in the interest of good order, Mr. Goodell suggests that Points 1 and 8 above be given your primary attention. Mr. Goodell's telephone number is - the address is: 535 Fifth Avenue

FROM: David Mark *DM*SUBJECT: IEF - PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

This is in summary, and extension, of recent discussions we have had about the past record, current status and future potential of the IEF.

I. Secondary Schools

We have now entered the final year of our first five-year period, which has been primarily a secondary education phase.

A. The Goal. Our assigned job in 1964 was to get the funds to make possible the construction of 72 high schools. This total, however, included six Arab schools which were never actually placed on our priority list; so that, realistically, we were seeking funds for 66 Jewish schools. The Druze school has raised the total to 67.

B. The Achievement. Of these, we have established 56 to date. With at least one estate and a number of individual solicitations in active negotiation and with almost a full year to go, it seems likely that we will meet or surpass our stated goal within the five years.

C. The Next Three to Five Years. The priority listing in Eliezer Shavit's current program summary contains 14 high school projects. The summary also lists as established 10 high schools for which a construction loan has been secured in Israel, and for which we are seeking replacement funds. If we meet our goal as expected by next September, at least 11 of these 24 listings will be eliminated. We cannot with certainty predict the extent of further high school construction in the next 3 to 5 years.

Our other building programs have not shown as much progress. Generally, the libraries, centers and pre-kindergartens do not have the size, stature or appeal of the high schools, nor are we called upon as urgently to provide them.

II. Public Libraries

A. The Goal. Our 1964 program called for the establishment of 26.

B. The Achievement. We have established only nine, at an almost exact pace of two a year. The libraries seem to have had the least human appeal of all our units. The nine donors have been attracted by a variety of reasons other than intrinsic value.

C. The Next Three to Five Years. Only six libraries appear as priorities on Shavit's latest summary. Of these, we have viable plans in hand for two.

III. Youth, Cultural and Community Centers

A. The Goal. Our 1964 program called for the establishment of 60 "youth centers."

TO: Mr. Ralph I. Goldman

DATE: November 29, 1968

FROM: David Mark

SUBJECT: IEF - PAST, PRESENT AND FUTUREPage 2

B. The Achievement. We have managed the establishment of 16 centers described in various ways ("youth", "cultural" and "community"). Six are the result of early negotiations with a single donor. Only three have been established in the past 15 months, all as part of "packages" including high schools. Prospect interest in this area is quite low.

C. The Next Three to Five Years. Only two "community centers" appear as priorities in Shavit's latest summary, and we have plans in hand for both. Despite a long study (1966-7) of the center problem by an inter-ministerial committee, which recommended a concentration on conglomerate "master" community centers, there is no clear government policy in this area at this time. The future of this unit in our program is open to question, although it has a great potential because of its importance to the social development of the community.

IV. Pre-Kindergartens

A. The Goal. Our 1964 program called for a minimum 85, assumedly in $100,000 packages of five; in 1967, because of added bomb shelter needs, the price went up and the packages were reduced to four.

B. The Achievement. We have established a total of 18 to date, including one package of five and two packages of four.

C. The Next Three to Five Years. There is no specific priority listing for this unit in Shavit's current summary. In response to a query, he has provided us with a "sample line" of 11 locations for which we may try to sell pre-kindergartens, but even these would have to be double-checked. The fact is that there is no pressure on us to obtain donors for these schools and there may be little demonstrable need... primarily because - of necessity and regardless of what we may do in this area - the municipalities themselves are going ahead on their own with the relatively inexpensive constructions of pre-kindergartens. This will undoubtedly be a minimum unit in our next program but should be retained, even on a token basis, because it has human appeal and can be matched to individual prospect circumstances.

V. Scholarships and Grants.

A. The Goal. Our 1964 program called for scholarships and grants in the multiple thousands at an aggregate cost of more than $50 million. Those projected figures were probably overblown and are now apparently outdated. The scholarship program has not been backed by any really useful supportive material, and our factors in Israel seem to be unclear or unsure about current facts and future projections.

B. The Achievement. We have established four $100,000 teacher-training scholarship funds which have resulted to date in 454 annual scholarships and, when used up, may have an ultimate "value" of about 1,000 scholarships. Unsolicited funds, mostly for student grants for partial tuition and supplementary aid, have provided 812 grants in various amounts and, when this year's candidates are approved, may also have a total value of about 1,000 grants.

C. The Next Three to Five Years. Useful concrete new facts have not been made available, and, until they are, the continuance of this unit into our next program period is open to question.

VI. A Brief Four-Year Summary

Despite the above restrictive considerations, our numerical achievement in the non-school categories has not been too bad. With 10 months to go, we are only one short of the milestone of 100 projects in all building categories.

Our pledge total to date is nearing $25 million. Maintaining our pace, we may reach $30 million by our fifth anniversary in September.

VII. OUR NEXT PROGRAM PERIOD

To assure the smooth continuity of our operation, it will be necessary for us to announce our next three-to-five year program at the earliest possible moment. Based on above considerations, it seems likely that:

A. Scholarships and projects other than high schools will be minor, unless there is an unexpected reversal of current trends.

B. High school construction will continue but on a limited scale. It would be shortsighted and unrealistic to think of the high school construction unit as the continuing core of our operation. For one thing, the master plan to keep adding to the years of compulsory education in Israel will eventually undermine our legal ability to seek funds for these schools on the basis of tax-deductible contributions. For another, our own achievement during these four years has met, and in some cases gotten ahead of, the high school construction need in many areas of Israel; the priority list has been shrinking; it seems likely that the need for high school construction will be very limited.

We must, it seems obvious, look elsewhere for a durable program base. The logical area, continuing beyond secondary education, is:

C. POST-SECONDARY EDUCATION

1. We have already entered this area with the establishment of the Ebin School of Engineering, which includes a 13th grade.

2. Before the Six-Day War, the Ministry of Education and Culture was seriously considering a widespread construction program for junior and community colleges. Assuming that there was documentable need for such a program and that the need must logically have grown -- and knowing that there exist a number of examples of successfully operating community colleges which would help make a unit such as this appealing to prospects -- a program in this area of some dimensions could very possibly be introduced into our next period of operations.

3. Beyond that, logically, lies the most durable base of our future operations - aid, in construction, scholarships and other forms, to:

D. UNIVERSITY EDUCATION

1. The need for a swift, vast expansion of Israel's university facilities has been voiced increasingly over the past few years and, in fact, has actually been in progress. Tel Aviv University, a comparative fledgling four years ago, has been growing rapidly. Haifa University, non-existent four years ago, has started constructing a set of buildings of major international architectural importance. The university in Beersheba, still in temporary quarters, is now working under an operating agreement with the Hebrew University, and the "University of the Negev" is no longer a distant dream. The Hebrew University itself, with the reopening of the Mt. Scopus campus, has embarked on a multi-million dollar construction and expansion program.

2. With secondary education broadening its base, meaning that more and more students of all origins will be going to and graduating from high school... with technical and professional training needs becoming increasingly urgent in a growing modern industrial society... a rather resounding university population explosion seems inevitable.

3. As the American experience has tended to demonstrate, a really wide-spread, aggressively expanding system of higher education is the apogee of successful absorption in an immigrant society. Just as financing absorption has been, and should be in increasing measure, the job of the UJA... the funding of a successful higher education system should be largely the job of the UJA's education division, the IEF; this should become more and more our aim and function as our secondary education phase is predictably phased out.

4. This fundamental change in emphasis might possibly become clear after the Conference on Human Needs next June. It is not, however, the purpose of this memo to project the studies and materials which must be prepared in order to commence a combined fundraising effort for higher education in Israel. The point being made is that, in order to make sure that the IEF continues while the University program is being explored, it is important to establish an interim program for, at a guess, three years. Such a program would begin in September, 1969 at the completion of the five-year plan presented by the IEF in 1964.

SUBJECT: NEW IEF PROGRAM

Last month in Israel, I was invited by the Deputy Minister of Finance, Dr. Z. Dinstein, for a discussion of the future program of the IEF. Eliezer Shmueli and Eliezer Shavit were present.

Dr. Dinstein was interested in knowing about my replacement and about the plans of the IEF for the future.

Mr. Shmueli indicated that the Ministry of Education was prepared to consider a new program upon completion of IEF's first five-year plan.

I told Dr. Dinstein we would advise him as soon as a replacement was found and that, in view of my imminent departure, I would like to suggest some guide lines for the type of program the Ministry of Education should present to the IEF. Because negotiations for the UJA to assume responsibility for a combined campaign for universities might take a long time to conclude, it would be desirable for the Ministry of Education to present an interim program, perhaps for only three years rather than five. The following should be taken into consideration:

1. The high school building requirement will not be as great as in the initial program of the IEF.
2. Community Centers could conceivably serve as a major focus... but for such an emphasis the Ministry of Education would have to do a great deal of planning.
3. From our experience, equipment for schools is not a very appealing fund raising program for American contributors.
4. The scholarship program has never really been properly prepared and presented for contributors in America, partly because the Government of Israel has found ways of providing scholarships, especially for the needy in development towns.
5. Community Colleges might serve as the best focus of attention in an "interim" program since they are not only clearly needed from an economic point of view but could be a good bridge between the high school program and the future university program.

Dr. Dinstein accepted these guide lines with appreciation. Mr. Shmueli simply said that the Ministry would give thought to the type of program that should be presented to the IEF.

The guide lines above are based on a number of IEF staff discussions over the past few months. I am attaching a memorandum summarizing those discussions with a current IEF operations chart, for reference.

3 Rogosin high schools dedication in Ashdod

UJA-Israel Education Fund past half way to goal

Mr. Israel Rogosin, famous American textile magnate, will celebrate his 81st birthday in Ashdod today by participating in the dedication of three Rogosin High Schools which he contributed through the Israel Education Fund of United Jewish Appeal.

Dedication ceremonies will be held at 10 a.m. Friday, Feb. 16 at the new Rogosin Nautical School in Ashdod. After the ceremony, dedicatory plaques also will be unveiled at the Rogosin Comprehensive High School and the Rogosin Religious Comprehensive High School, all in Ashdod. Speakers at the dedication include Louis A. Pincus, Chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive; Aharon Yadin, Deputy Minister of the Ministry of Education and Culture; S. Lewin-Epstein, President of ORT; Mayor Avner Garin of Ashdod.

The three Ashdod schools are among twelve which Mr. Rogosin contributed with total contributions of

Mr. Israel Rogosin

$4,250,000. Other Rogosin schools are in various stages of either completion or construction or architectural planning at Migdal Haemek, Kiryat Ata, Rosh Ha'ayin, Kiryat Gat, Ashkelon, Tel Aviv, Nahariya and other locations to be determined by the Education Ministry's priorities list.

HONOUR ROGOSIN

Mr. Rogosin, who resides at Allenhurst, New Jersey, and operates two of Ashdod's major industrial plants, has been setting the example with his educational philanthropies of his personal conviction that Israel's future depends to a large extent upon the education and training of skilled technicians and workmen for a modern technological society, geared to efficient, high productivity of exports.

Mayor Garin will express the appreciation of the 32,000 residents of Ashdod to Israel Rogosin, who provided the new seaport with hundreds of employment opportunities as well as school facilities for generations to come.

The New York industrialist established the first of Rogosin Industries in Ashdod in 1958, only two years after the port city was born on the sand dunes covering the ruins of an ancient Biblical harbour. Rogosin plants in Ashdod produce nylon and tire cord fabrics mainly for export.

Starting with a modest family knitted goods business at the age of 16, Israel Rogosin built up the American-textile giant, Beaunit Mills, with nearly forty knitting, textile and yarn factories in the United States.

Mr. Rogosin also has generously contributed millions of dollars to hospitals, universities, schools, research and civic organizations of all faiths in the United States. Milligan College awarded him an honorary Doctor of Science degree. Cornell Medical College established a Rogosin Chair in biochemistry.

NAUTICAL SCHOOL

The Rogosin Nautical School in Ashdod extends the Israel Education Fund into the vital field of training young men for Israel's Maritime merchant fleet. The Rogosin Nautical school campus covers fifty dunams near Lighthouse Hill overlooking the port and is planned for expansion into additional school buildings. The Nautical school includes facilities for dormitories, classrooms, workshops, laboratories, dining room, sports, infirmary, and a boat anchorage. In its initial stages, the school teaches both regular secondary school studies and specialized courses to prepare marine electrical and radio officers. The school whose director, Ephraim Perry, is a former naval officer, is under the supervision of the Department of Marine Education in the Ministry of Education and Culture and is included in the network of ORT vocational schools. The first graduates will complete their studies in 1970 and join the Navy for compulsory service. In 1973, they will be ready to join the Merchant Navy as graduate officers.

COMPREHENSIVE

The two Rogosin comprehensive high schools in Ashdod are part of a growing network of comprehensive secondary schools, mainly in the immigrant development towns, which is changing the face of the young generation.

In some of the development towns where new IEF comprehensive high schools have been in operation for a year or more, their availability reversed the picture of secondary school attendance. In most immigrant towns, no more than one-fourth of the youngsters who completed elementary school continued on to secondary school.

Where comprehensive high schools are in operation, with their parallel vocational and academic departments, between 75 to 90 per cent of the elementary school graduates enroll in high school in some towns. This is because the comprehensive high school is designed to accommodate those students who can only remain in high school by concentrating on a vocational course. At the same time, the comprehensive high school provides the opportunity for the academic achiever to prepare himself for continuing on to university education.

The Ministry of Education and Culture, by extending free tuition to high school students in development areas and to other students unable to pay, and by providing the comprehensive high school facilities with the help of the UJA-Israel Education Fund, is bringing nearer the day when all needy youngsters can be assured of free education up to age 18. Eliezer Shmueli, director of High Schools Administration of the Ministry of Education, said the comprehensive school, with its combining of academic and vocational trends sharply reduces the number of "drop-outs" because pupils who cannot make the grade in the academic department are transferred to the vocational wing. The comprehensive programme also provides hot lunches, special tutoring, after-class study periods, the long school day, extra-curricular activities, including sports, music, drama, art, etc.

TRIBUTES TO ROGOSIN

Mr. Pinhas Sapir, Finance Minister, paid tribute to his friend, Israel Rogosin, for advancing their mutual interest of building up Israel's industrial resources and human resources. Mr. Rogosin is doing both by his industrial investments and his investment in children through his contribution of secondary schools, said the Finance Minister.

Mr. Louis A. Pincus, chairman of the Jewish Agency, which coordinates the Israel Education Fund programme, lauded the enormous contribution of Israel Rogosin toward absorbing new immigrants to Israel, both by providing employment and schools.

I. Goldman, Director-General of I.E.F., announced that the Israel Education Fund has activated 42 school projects which is over half way toward its objective of helping to build a network of more than sixty high schools in immigrant development areas in Israel.

The Israel Education Fund was conceived by Herbert A. Friedman, Executive Vice-Chairman of the United Jewish Appeal and initiated in September 1964 to meet acute building, personnel and equipment shortages in Israel's system of secondary education, particularly in the development areas.

The Israel Education Fund seeks funds for the construction of high schools, libraries, community centres, and pre-kindergarten schools, and for the establishment of scholarships for students and teachers in training. All schools, facilities and scholarships created by contributions to the I.E.F. are administered by the United Israel Appeal, Inc., an American corporation.

ISRAEL'S ACADEMIC GROWING PAINS

Israel's academic community is growing rapidly, and not without experiencing "growing pains."

A record number of 29,205 students were enrolled at five major academic institutions and two affiliates* during 1968. The demand for academic education shows no sign of receding; facilities have been augmented, but thousands of applicants are still turned away.

Unresolved issues that have beset the institutions in recent years, such as deficit budgets, student fees, staff problems and research priorities, will probably continue to occupy the agendas of University Councils and committees. A Knesset Committee on Higher Education, formed after a student strike against higher fees two years ago, has just recently wound up its deliberations formally,** while a proposed Law for the establishment of a Higher Education Authority has become a topic of considerable controversy.

Meanwhile, the explosive events of recent months in Europe (and even prior to them on American campuses and at the London School of Economics) have not gone unnoticed in Israel. The banner of student revolt, raised in France, Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland, led in varying degrees to an undermining of governmental, no less than academic authority. It would obviously be misleading to draw simple analogies between either the composition of the student body or the wider social structure in Israel and in any other country presently gripped by student protest, but it would be equally obtuse to ignore the influence of the outside world on Israel or to expect that the forces released during the student uprising overseas will find no local response whatsoever.

The Israeli student is in a particularly interesting situation, in that he does not seem to fit the image prevalent elsewhere. He begins studies later than his counterpart overseas (after military service — approximately at 21 or upwards);

* See Table No. 1 at the end of article.

** The Committee recommended freezing the present fee level and passing the issue eventually to a Higher Education Authority.

he seldom has either the time or the inclination to engage in extra-curricular campus activities; and he usually has to support himself (and often a family as well). Any serious analyst of the Israeli student body must realize the limited applicability of the findings of sociological surveys of university life overseas to the Israeli scene, though again certain factors and processes remain unaffected by the national setting.

Looking for the facts

A sociological research project on "Patterns of Recruitment, Selection, Advancement and Allocation of Israeli University Students in a Period of Social Change" is currently underway at Tel Aviv University. Headed jointly by Dr. Rina Shapira, a sociologist in the field of education, and Mr. Mordechai Miron, an educational psychologist, the four-year study, begun in October, 1965, has passed the mid-way point. Financed by the U. S. Office of Education with the help of the University's Research Authority, and operating on an overall four-year budget of about IL. 160,000.— it encompassed a sample of 1,000 students who began studies in 1966.

These students were questioned by the research team on a wide range of personal and social matters connected with their studies, including their economic, cultural and familial backgrounds, their declared motives for enrolling at the university and their expectations from it, their present occupations and sources of livelihood, their professional ambitions, their attitudes to academic discipline and to the university environment; their relationships with fellow students and with the university staff and administration.

All these factors were related to the students' actual scholastic performances and to a series of independently conducted intelligence tests used by the research team. The direction in which this investigation was taken focused mainly on the students' attitude sets. Answers were sought to questions such as how the student envisaged himself after graduation: whether he considered himself a future scientist, a professional white-collar worker or simply an educated man?

The research team sought ways to pinpoint the most influential reference groups affecting student choices. Some students, it appeared, have no prior "guiding beacon" and enroll to get a degree first and decide what to do later. A considerable number registered for available courses during their first year and, after transferring to different departments the following year, explained that they had done so in response to their own crystallization of interests. Earlier they had apparently preferred to be "in" the university rather than "out," even at the cost of studying courses not of primary interest to them.

Among other things, the research directors have tested the applicability to Israeli universities of a model developed by two American sociologists, Burton Clark and Martin Trow, identifying four types of students and student cultures: the "academic" type, interested in scholastic distinction for its own sake; the "vocational" type, aiming to gain a specific professional skill and status; the "collegiate" type, caring for an active social life with plenty of sport and entertainment on the campus, and the "non-conformist" type, a rebel against authority wherever it be found, and usually the most active politically of all the categories mentioned*.

Do these categories, originally formulated on American campuses, apply in Israel? According to some signs, in Israel there would appear to be a preponderance of "vocationally"-oriented types, our students taking their studies more seriously than the average student at American colleges. The "social animal", ubiquitous on the Continent or at American universities, is rarer in Israel; while the politically active are not necessarily "non-conformist" but rather conform to the party-frameworks with which they are affiliated.

No exact figures supporting these hypotheses are as yet available and the research directors are naturally cautious about discussing their work before all the data gathered is processed by the university computer, classified and interpreted. After its evaluation, a second series of follow-up checks and procedures will be conducted, taken to the point at which the same students who were interviewed before will either have graduated or dropped out before finishing their studies. (A special follow-up record of the latter category is being compiled at the University).

Once the results and analysis are published in full, the research staff hope to be able to predict combinations of circumstances impeding or facilitating academic progress. Possibly, university curricula could be amended and re-oriented in the light of new findings.

Israeli students, state and society

The Six Day War in the Middle East provided a sharp relief against which to view the Israeli student body, which was called on to share in the national war effort, through the mobilization of units to which students were attached. All Israeli citizens undertake army service and are later attached to reserve units; the student's status in this respect makes little difference. However, the demands on the students made each year in reserve training and maneuvers, leave them that much less time and energy for their studies and other campus activities.

What in other countries might be taken for apathy or indifference among students, would in Israel tend to reflect a high degree of consensus over issues affecting national survival. Conversely, the themes of rebellion that so inflame students in countries marked by strong social and economic inequities are of lesser relevance to the Israeli. Though scoring high on political information, the average Israeli student would probably rank lower than his counterpart overseas as regards political participation. After the War for example, such issues as the retention or return of territories occupied by the Israeli army has agitated students as much as other sectors of the public, but only in one case (at the Hebrew University) has controversy over them led to a direct clash (and blows) between rival student groups.

Basically, however, the wartime situation is an extraordinary social setting in which conclusions about the relationship between the students and the universities and the general population would be unlikely to show the full picture.

Israel's peacetime social setting is that of a socialist country, largely adhering to a "nation-building" ideology that took shape as far back as the early twentieth century when the Second Aliya pioneers made their way to Palestine and left an indelible mark on the emergent Jewish society and its institutions. The relevant questions being asked by social investigators today focus on the nature and the extent of change and innovation in the social structure and the role of the universities in this process.

Universities have at different periods of history served as both agents of conservatism and seedbeds of revolt. They have functioned as both the perpetrators of elites and the harbingers of innovation and reform. What is their role in modern Israel? Are socialist doctrines (with the additional theme according higher status to manual labor than to other occupations that characterized the early Zionist socialist ideologists) compatible with orientations to higher education and its consequent professionalism?

Discussing the relationship of higher education to socialism, sociologists have noted ambivalence among socialist leaders and policy makers, adhering to egalitarian philosophies but faced with the reality of intellectual differences among human beings*. Tension between the aim of equalizing the opportunity structure in society and the inevitable occupational and socio-economic stratification resulting from differing intellectual capacities, are not easily resolved in socialist societies.

Israel's case is particularly illuminating. The universities were long regarded as promoting values antithetical to those emphasized by the labor movement and by its elite vanguard, the kibbutzim. To this day, for example, there is a strong tendency in kibbutzim to discourage academic aspirations among kibbutz-born children.

The standard matriculation certificate is not studied for in many kibbutz schools, which adhere to a specially designed syllabus. Thus, candidates for academic institutes from kibbutzim often have to take special leave to prepare for the regular "Bagrut" examinations in order to comply with registration requirements at the universities.

This is not to imply that the kibbutzim are unaware of the latest scientific and technological developments or of the importance of education at all levels for their own future. Many of the founders of veteran kibbutzim and the leaders of the kibbutz movements were themselves one-time university students and graduates. But their present disenchantment with the available university facilities stems from a fear that academic studies would both reduce the attachment of their children to the way of life in the kibbutz and would encourage deviation from the egalitarian goals of the movement. Thus, in kibbutz schools, more emphasis is placed on pragmatic and vocational education, coupled with a thorough orientation to the kibbutz weltanschauung, something that is reflected in aspiration patterns and levels among kibbutz children. At the same time, the kibbutzim have introduced a variety of "home studies" and courses available at regional study centers for adult members interested in keeping up with the times or refreshing their knowledge without formal enrollment at a town university.

* See: "Socialism and Higher Education", by Joseph W. Eaton, The University of Pittsburgh, 1967. A Paper presented at a Hebrew University Colloquium, April 17, 1967.

Conflict of Values

Of equal interest is the dialogue between the academic world and the political elite in Israel. As the old outlook and image of a pioneering society, with the emphasis on egalitarian, pioneering ideals, gives way inevitably to the ethos and structure of a modernized industrial state, so the concept of education and its role has undergone change. The occupational mobility characterizing the academic professions and the consequent attitude to specialized knowledge as a commodity with an acquisition price and a defined social and economic exchange value, quite frequently clash with more conservative "old-guard" attitudes of political leaders who think that a university education is a privilege, requiring the graduate to "recompense" society later on.

Showdowns and negotiations between academic graduates and government or Histadrut officials over salary scales during the past years, as well as haggling between politicians and students over raised university fees, were occasions when arguments along these lines were employed. A current running sore is the reopening of a long-standing controversy over a proposed legal rider requiring graduates of Israeli medical schools (many of whom leave for advanced studies overseas soon after graduating) to undertake a period of service in border or development areas where medical facilities are scarce.

Mutual recriminations between the universities and the political leadership do not relate exclusively to economic matters. They encompass a wider sphere of academic freedoms and responsibilities in a modern state. Where governmental support of academic institutes is extensive (through direct grants, development loans and research projects), complex relationships arise. Inevitably, expectations from universities in developing countries are great, sometimes exceeding available potential and leading to anger and disappointment at "non-fulfillment" in the community.

The debate over the Law for the establishment of a Higher Education Authority in Israel reflects some of these dilemmas. Till now, a Council for Higher Education, operating as an overall academic authority of the highest public standing, and headed officially by the Minister of Education, has served as a co-ordinating body approving academic standards at new university faculties, after requisite examination. The proposed Law would confer these duties on a special Authority operating under the auspices of a permanent Ministerial Committee, and undertaking additional functions, such as long-term planning of higher education patterns and priorities. This is a modification of an earlier proposal to set up a special Ministry of Science and Technology apart from the Ministry of Education. Over the past years, a number of commissions have studied the issues concerned, the proposal for establishment of a Higher Education Authority having been broached by the Shareff Committee in 1965 (headed by Mr. Zeev Shareff, present Minister of Commerce).

Though not all details of the newly proposed law have been worked out, its apparent implications point to more active government participation in academic affairs. (This is one consequence of the chronic deficits at Israeli universities over the past years, which the Treasury has been covering in large measure.) In turn, the spectre of "interference" and "intervention" in academic affairs, a traditional nightmare at universities, has been raised<sup>o</sup>.

Such conflicts are perhaps inevitable "growing pains" of a university network not yet fully established and integrated into the social system. So many serious problems confront Israeli society, comprised as it is of a multitude of ethnic groups and carrying built-in communal tensions, that the role of the university cannot easily be determined. Statistics showing a preponderance of students of "Ashkenazi" origin over those of "Sephardi" origin<sup>o o</sup> at both high schools and academic institutions in relation to their respective ratios of the population, are not new in Israel. The risk that a majority of Israeli youngsters not even reaching eligibility, let alone achieving actual admission, for a university education, will turn against a society adhering to an ethos of education but unable to supply it for all, is still large.

* Though not directly connected with these developments, the case involving Dr. Georges Tamarin, a Tel Aviv University psychology lecturer, appeared to lend credence to this fear in the view of some observers. After angering Ministry of Education officials by publishing research results indicating that certain Bible studies (notably the wars of Joshua) might be leading to chauvinistic attitudes among Israeli school children, Dr. Tamarin found himself at the centre of a public and academic storm. Dismissed in 1966 from his staff appointment, on grounds unexplained at the time but acknowledged as stemming from a quarrel with the former head of the Psychology Department at the University, Dr. Tamarin fought long for his reinstatement. It was granted him after a senior University enquiry committee confirmed his academic and professional standing and criticized the dismissal decision as having been tainted with non-academic considerations in part.

** "Ashkenazi" sector includes those born in Israel of European or American-born parents, or recent immigrants from Europe or America. "Sephardi" sector includes those born in Israel of parents from Middle Eastern or Asian and North African countries or recent immigrants from these lands. See Attached Tables.

In a society where education is necessarily expensive and rationed (and in Israel only primary education is free, though secondary education is being increasingly subsidized), those enjoying higher education would be both unwise and irresponsible to ignore the antagonism of those with unfulfilled educational aspirations and neglect their alleviation. Concern lest the present socio-economic gap between ethnic groups in Israel be perpetuated unless the rules of the educational opportunity network are altered in favor of these being left behind, should be of utmost priority among those dealing with educational policy.

It is primarily by getting better acquainted with the qualities and defects, the capacities and the limitations of our students and universities and by rethinking with them their roles in modern Israel, that we can avoid squandering an investment in academic education for which we are all jointly responsible.

WHAT TO DO WITH PALESTINE

AYOUB MUSALLAM

PEACE DEPENDS UPON ISRAEL

For generations Arabs and Jews lived together peacefully in this country, bound by mutual interests and brought closer together by the factors of neighborhood and other aspects of life. The history of the main towns of Palestine—Jerusalem, Haifa, Safed, Tiberias, Hebron and other localities inhabited by both Jews and Arabs teems with instances of brotherhood and sincere cooperation. This peaceful and fraternal co-existence continued to dominate the various aspects of Palestinian life until the termination of the First World War, which engendered Balfour's promise, the pledge to establish a national home for the Jews in Palestine.

Up till then, the Arabs of Palestine had not done any injustice to their brethren, the Jews, nor had they been responsible for any tragic event victimizing the Jews. They were, therefore, horrified and bitterly disappointed at the issuance of such a promise, which they resented most vigorously. What added to their restlessness and intensified their fears was the propaganda spread by both the Mandatory Government itself or those governments and world organizations who opposed Zionism.

Consequently, the Arabs came to believe that the promise aimed at expelling them and depriving them of their rights in Palestine and establishing a Jewish national home at their expense. Thus, they unanimously opposed it and very severely criticized the right to make such a promise. Unfortunately, the opposition and resistance of the Palestinian Arab leaders were not carried on according to a wisely and carefully prepared plan; actually, there was no real planning, no effective preparation of any kind. In addition, the declarations about slaughtering the Jews and throwing them into the sea gained for Balfour's promise a larger number of supporters in the East and West, also enabling the Jews to win the sympathy of all the world. This was an asset to their cause, and they proceeded carefully and skillfully towards the

Beersheba College signs deal with Hebrew University

Jan. Post
Sept. 30
1968

The Institute for Higher Learning in the Negev, Beersheba's fledgling university, took another step forward in its development yesterday, when a five-year agreement was signed with the Hebrew University.

Speaking at the signing ceremony, Hebrew University President Avraham Harman said his university was going into partnership with the Negev College, fully confident in the future of higher education in the Negev. This was the latest in a series of new educational projects helped by the Hebrew University.

District Court Judge Shlomo Elkayam presided at the ceremony, and the agreement was signed by Mr. Harman, Mr. David Touvyahu, Chairman of the Committee for Higher Learning in the Negev, and Professors R. I. Z. Werblowsky, Haim Beinart, and Shimon Klein.

In the past three years, the student body of the Negev Institute has grown from 250 to 1200. A total of 700 students, (400 of them new this year), are studying at courses of the Hebrew University in the Humanities, Biology and Social Sciences. After three years in Beersheba, the students move to Jerusalem for the final year. The other 500 study under the auspices of the Haifa Technion and the Weizmann Institute of Science.

Most of the 75 lecturers at present commute to Beersheba from the Hebrew University, which is responsible for the academic planning of the new institute. The library has grown to 35,000 volumes. At present the college is housed at HIAS house, a former hotel for foreign experts, but a new campus is in the planning stage.
