Re: CIJE Brochure

We now have only 50 brochures left. Josie and I have reread the text and concluded that the overall format is fine but that the individual sections are a little out-of-date. The simplest and most efficient way to go back to press on new brochures is for each staff person to take on the paragraph/s that describe his/her domain. Josie and I will then edit overall; Alan will sign off; and we're in business.

Please look at your piece in the list below and get me back your changes no later than Wed. Jan. 10. (If anyone has a time or editorial problem, feel free to call/write.) We want to keep the brochure at its current size and length, but there is always a little flexibility if people need to add a couple of sentences to do full justice to their work!

P. 1: Nessa

P. 2, first para.: Nessa

Pp. 2-3: "Building the Profession": Gail

Pp. 3-4: "Mobilizing Community Support": Nessa

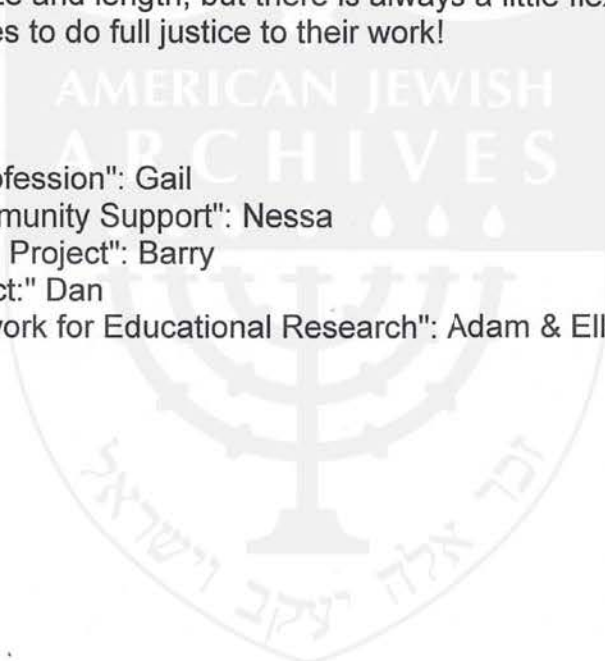

P. 4: "The Best Practices Project": Barry

P. 4-5: "The Goals Project": Dan

P. 5: "Creating a Framework for Educational Research": Adam & Ellen

P. 6: Nessa

Re: CIJE Brochureand Rosenack

nessa, if you could ask someone to either bring me a brochure or Israel or drop one off for me at my house. that would be the easiest way for me to meet this deadline.

about the rosenack consultation, didn't we say also mark gurvis?

I also thought I remembered alan suggesting howard charish in philly and what about metrowest where saul andron and I can't remember new exec's name. these would be interesting people to include. gail

Re: cije brochure

Fixing the brochure: be sure to check the back page list of people-- e.g. dead board members like Tim Hausdorf, long-gone field researchers like Roberta (and what is Bill's official title?) and PLEASE change me from senior education officer to consultant.

As to best practice. It's okay, but the phrase saying that the guides "explore how such models can be translated to other educational settings" isn't exactly right, or it overstates what the guides do. The guides certainly CAN help people improve their own institutions by learning about what's good, but it's not quite as simple as the brochure makes it out to be. But maybe that's what a brochure is!

Ellen and I both think the research/evaluation section of the brochure is fine.
