C. Distribution of Final Report

We will plan to print enough copies of the final report to distribute to commissioners and the leadership of the organizations which have an interest in Jewish education. It was suggested that we work with University Press to publish and distribute the report, for a fee, to others. This will require further discussion.

III. CIJE Update

It was reported that an outline has been drafted which sets forth the mission, structure, and operating principles of the Council for Initiatives in Jewish Education. In addition, a draft budget has been developed.

Current activities are focused on fundraising, identification of personnel, the location of space, and identification of a fiscal agent.

It was reported that the concept of the CIJE has been presented to

MINUTES: COUNCIL STEERING COMMITTEE TELECONFERENCE

DATE OF MEETING: October 23, 1990

DATE MINUTES ISSUED: October 24, 1990

PRESENT: Seymour Fox, Annette Hochstein, Stephen H. Hoffman,
David P. Kleinman, Morton L. Mandel, Henry L. Zucker,
Virginia F. Levi (Sec'y)

I. Press Conference (9:30 a.m. - November 8)

The purpose of the press conference is to feature the findings of the Commission. Issues which should be highlighted are the private/public partnership and the pluralistic nature of the effort.

A. Participants

Assignment

In addition to MLM, Gottschalk, Green, Lamm and Schorsch, it was agreed to invite Bill Berman, Neil Greenbaum and Lester Pollack to participate.

B. Arrangements

A media alert has been sent to a mailing list of approximately 250. Jerry Strober is drafting a press release, which will be circulated to the Steering Committee before distribution. V

Assignment

DPK will prepare a list of key points for use by MLM in making his opening statement.

It was agreed that a breakfast meeting will take place at 8:30 a.m. for the purpose of preparing the principals. Staff will also be present.

The press conference will begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude by 10:15. MLM may use a few slides as the basis of a factual, action oriented presentation. The slides will be prepared by AH for use in her presentation later in the morning.

Press kits will be prepared and will include the following:

1. Bio and PR photos of the principals
2. Press release
3. Final report
4. CIJE mission statement
5. Commissioner list
6. List of Commission meeting dates

Council Steering Committee Teleconference
October 23, 1990

In addition, Strober will fax a press release to the local paper of each commissioner. It will include statements from the people who will participate in the press conference.

UJA will provide a photographer.

MLM will chair the press conference, will make the opening statement, and will see that all of the principals are involved.

Strober has agreed that it would be appropriate for Twersky to write an op ed piece.

Staff to be present for the breakfast and press conference include SF, AH, SHH, DPK, and VFL. In addition, we will invite Kraar, Rotman and Woocher.

II. Morning Meeting (10:30 a.m. to Noon)

It is anticipated that the audience will be approximately half Commission members and half important people who have not been a part of the process or read the report. It will be important to relay the basic principles of the Commission plan and to focus heavily on implementation, providing a clear understanding of how we got to this point.

A. MLM Opening Remarks (5-10 minutes)

This will include the following components: welcome, introduction of guests (perhaps limited to general comments on the presence of both Commission members and guests with an interest in the Commission's product), comments on the events and process leading to today's meeting, a listing of attendees of commissioners and incorporation of their comments in next drafts, an invitation to respond to the report, and an introduction of the morning presenters.

B. AH Recap of Report Based on Executive Summary (15-20 minutes)

This presentation will include the use of slides and will focus on the process of developing the report and on implementation.

C. Discussion of Report (30 minutes)

It was suggested that we consider contacting some people in advance to prepare them to speak. Bronfman, who will not be present in the afternoon, might be encouraged to talk about collaboration. Someone should be asked to focus on federation and community. Institution heads might be asked to speak about how they plan to focus on training personnel. Others might speak about the importance of the CIJE as a catalyst. SHH and VFL will review the attendance list and then consult with SF, AH and HLZ to identify possible speakers.

D. SHH will present the CIJE (15 minutes)

E. Discussion of CIJE (30 minutes)

III. Afternoon Meeting (1:00 - 2:30 p.m.)

A. MLM comments (20 minutes)

MLM will mention the outstanding participation and positive response of commissioners and will thank our partners by name. Any further thanks which single out individuals could be problematic. This will be considered and discussed further before November 8.

B. Max Fisher (5 minutes)

He will be asked to focus on the importance of Jewish education and the awakening of American Jewish leadership to the issue.

C. Minister Zevulun Hammer (20 minutes)

Assignment

SF will prepare Minister Hammer. It was suggested that his remarks be put in the context of current world issues, of the importance of the Jewish communities supporting each other, and of the challenge of educating Soviets on their Jewish heritage. His remarks should note the importance of the outcomes of the Commission to Jews worldwide.

D. Discussion

Assignment

SHH and HLZ will work with MLM to develop a clear formulation for reporting on funding. They will prepare a question and answer sheet listing points likely to be raised and our answers. In addition, they will select some funders to be primed to speak. SHH will call Corson to ask about having a Wexner Foundation representative present.

Assignment

IV. Other Matters

A. CIJE Consultation

It has been suggested that a consultation of people interested in CIJE be scheduled for 2:30-3:30 p.m. It was noted that participation might be somewhat random, and that participation would be limited sending the wrong signals to those who do attend. No conclusion was reached. This is to be discussed later.

B. It was suggested that a meeting of the Council Steering Committee and Kraar, Rotman and Woocher be scheduled for 9:00 p.m. on Wednesday, November 7 to review plans for the 8th. The location of this meeting will be determined.

- C. It was reported that the final report will be ready on November 1. A supply will be available for distribution at the meeting on the 8th. A few will be distributed before the meeting. A supply will be available for distribution at the GA and efforts are under way to arrange for the sale of the report at the GA.

Assignment:

- D. SF and SHH will work on developing a list of commissioners to be called prior to the distribution of the report.

Dear Seymour,

I will be attending the meeting of the National Commission on Jewish Education on November 8 in New York City.

I am quite eager to finish up my paper on Informal Education for the Commission. I had been expecting you to send me your marginal notes so I could focus my revisions to be responsive to the points you were raising. If you could fax (617-736-2070) those to me I would go to work on the task at once. Or, when you are in New York, if you could identify specific points in the manuscript where you feel I need to do revisions, that would enable me to move ahead.

I look forward to hearing from you and certainly seeing you in New York on November 8.

Sincerely,

PREFACE

In August of 1988, the Commission on Jewish Education in North America was convened to initiate a process that could bring about systemic, across-the-board improvement in the quality of Jewish education in the United States and Canada. Our goal was to bring together extensive new resources and energies so that Jewish education could make its fullest contribution to meaningful Jewish continuity.

The composition of the Commission reflected the diversity of the Jewish community and was based on a close partnership between the private and communal sectors. It was comprised of 44 prominent individuals representing key segments of the Jewish community -- the heads of institutions of higher learning in the Orthodox, Conservative, Reconstructionist, and Reform movements; educators; rabbis; scholars; heads of foundations; and community leaders.

Never before in North America had such a diverse leadership group come together to address the problems of Jewish education and consider its impact on the Jewish future. Our deliberations over a two-year period and the strategies we have developed demonstrate that enormous power can be marshaled when the different sectors of the Jewish community join forces, develop a consensus, and decide on a plan of action.

Working with the Commission was a group of senior policy advisors consisting of educators, scholars, and the professional heads of major communal organizations. They provided the Commission with valuable experience and expertise in the areas of education, planning, and community organization. Additional counsel was sought from experts in Jewish as well as general education in both North America and Israel. Available data on Jewish education was reviewed, and 11 research papers were especially commissioned to provide a picture of the current state of Jewish education.

The Commission held six plenary sessions between August 1988 and June 1990. A full-time staff prepared background materials for the meetings and maintained continuous written and personal communication with individual commissioners between each of the sessions.

From the outset, all of the commissioners shared the determination to make a concrete impact on Jewish life. We agreed that we would not conclude the work of this Commission without beginning the implementation process the very day we issued our report. We have initiated this process by creating a new entity, the Council for Initiatives in Jewish Education (CIJE), and giving it the mandate to bring about the implementation of our concrete plan of action. Its functions have been set forth in our report, initial funding is already in place, a director has been appointed, and a board of directors is in formation.

The CIJE is now ready to bring our message to the community and launch our plan. It will develop the criteria for Lead Communities and select them; it will immediately help to expand training programs, to recruit capable students for them, and to undertake the complex and sensitive task of introducing large numbers of community leaders to the intricacies of Jewish education.

The CIJE will work in close partnership with CJF, JCC Association, and JESNA. It will also work closely with the institutions and organizations that are delivering the services of Jewish education -- the denominations, the Bureaus of Jewish Education, the local federations, the professional organizations, and above all, the front line educators. They have set the groundwork that makes our plan feasible. Over the last few years, through their initiatives and efforts, a climate that is receptive to change and improvement has begun to emerge.

The substantial resources of recently established foundations, a number of which have already given Jewish education a high place on their agendas, will make it possible for ambitious programs to be launched immediately. The foundations represented on this Commission have undertaken pioneering work in the areas of curriculum, adult education, the training of educators, the contribution of Israel to Jewish education, the creative use of the electronic media, and the encouragement of innovation by educators.

I want to thank the members of the Commission for giving so generously of their time and wisdom, and for their willingness to rise above real and legitimate differences of viewpoint in order to agree upon this ambitious, yet realistic plan of action.

With the issuance of this report, the Commission on Jewish Education in North America has achieved its primary objective. Ahead lies the challenge of implementation and the opportunity to make a significant difference. We are determined to face squarely the problems of our educational system, and to help usher in a new era in Jewish education.

Morton L. Mandel
Chairman
The Commission on Jewish Education in North America

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Jewish community of North America is facing a crisis of major proportions. Large numbers of Jews have lost interest in Jewish values, ideals, and behavior, and there are many who no longer believe that Judaism has a role to play in their search for personal fulfillment and communality. This has grave implications, not only for the richness of Jewish life, but for the very continuity of a large segment of the Jewish people. Over the last several decades, intermarriage between Jews and non-Jews has risen dramatically, and a major proportion of children of such marriages no longer identify themselves as Jews.

It is clear that there is a core of deeply committed Jews whose very way of life ensures meaningful Jewish continuity from generation to generation. However, there is a much larger segment of the Jewish population which is finding it increasingly difficult to define its future in terms of Jewish values and behavior. The responsibility for developing Jewish identity and instilling a commitment to Judaism for this population now rests primarily with education.

The Jews of North America have built an extensive and diverse system of education that takes place in many formal and informal settings. Outstanding educators who are excellent teachers and role models for young people and adults can be found throughout North America in classrooms and community centers, on educational trips to Israel, and in summer camps.

However, the system of Jewish education is plagued by many problems, and because of its inadequacies it is failing to engage the minds of a critical segment of the Jewish population who have no other way of experiencing the beauty and richness of Jewish life.

Careful study of the current state of Jewish education reveals that much of the system, in its various forms and settings, is beset by these problems -- sporadic participation; deficiencies in educational content; an underdeveloped profession of Jewish education; inadequate community support; the absence of a research function to monitor results, allocate resources, and plan improvements.

Recent developments throughout the continent indicate that a climate exists today for bringing about major improvements. However, a massive program will have to be undertaken in order to revitalize Jewish education so that it is capable of performing a pivotal role in the meaningful continuity of the Jewish people. It was to achieve this goal that the Commission on Jewish Education in North America was established.

After analyzing the problems, the Commission decided to focus its effort on the two building blocks upon which the entire system rests -- developing the profession of Jewish education and mobilizing community support to meet the needs and goals of Jewish education. In order to secure these essential building blocks, a blueprint for the future consisting of a series of concrete steps was worked out by the Commission. The plan includes both short- and long-range elements, and implementation can begin immediately with initial funding already provided.

The core of the Commission's plan is to infuse Jewish education with a new vitality by recruiting large numbers of talented and dedicated educators. These educators need to work in a congenial environment, sustained by a Jewish community that recognizes Jewish education as the most effective means for perpetuating Jewish identity and creating a commitment to Jewish values and behavior.

The plan developed by the Commission includes the following elements:

1. Building a profession of Jewish education -- by creating a North American infrastructure for recruiting and training increasing numbers of qualified personnel; expanding the faculties and facilities of training institutions; intensifying on-the-job training programs; raising salaries and benefits of educational personnel; developing new career track opportunities; and increasing the empowerment of educators.
2. Mobilizing community support -- By recruiting top community leaders to the cause of Jewish education; raising Jewish education to the top of the communal agenda; creating a positive environment for effective Jewish education; and providing substantially increased funding from federations, private foundations, and other sources.
3. Establishing three to five Lead Communities -- To function as local laboratories for Jewish education; to determine the educational practices and policies that work best; to redesign and improve Jewish education through a wide array of intensive programs; to demonstrate what can happen when there is an infusion of outstanding personnel into the educational system, with a high level of community support and with the necessary funding.

4. Developing a research capability -- By drawing up a comprehensive research agenda for Jewish education; creating the theoretical and practical knowledge base needed to monitor results and make informed decisions; conducting ongoing studies on the state of Jewish education in general, and on the progress of each component of the Commission's plan.

5. Creating a Council for Initiatives in Jewish Education -- A new entity that will operate as a catalytic agent, working mainly through the efforts of others to ensure the implementation of the Commission's plan; helping to secure necessary funding; overseeing the establishment of Lead Communities; coordinating research activities; providing a setting in which creative people, institutions, organizations, and foundations can work together to develop new undertakings in Jewish education; and helping to replicate the successful experiences in Lead Communities throughout North America.

The Commission is confident that its blueprint is realistic and feasible, and will indeed provide the foundation for a new era in Jewish education. An enormous investment of resources and energies will be required to bring this about, but the Commission is convinced that the will is there and the time to act is now.

Dear Steve,

It was good talking to you yesterday. As promised I am attaching both the preface -- after Mort's changes -- and the acknowledgements. Please note that Mort has added a paragraph concerning us to the last page. We were rather surprised since we thought this belongs in the acknowledgements section. We have faxed Mort to this effect, telling him that we believe it should be omitted in the preface and that you would draft the acknowledgements concerning us. We are awaiting his response. I omitted the section about us in the version faxed to Ginny.

I must talk to you urgently (today if possible) concerning publication. Will be at home (732-802; 733906) - or out - much of your day. Have a pleasant one.
Best Regards,

Annette

TO: Members of the Commission on Jewish Education in North America

FROM: Morton L. Mandel, Chairman

DATE: ____ October, 1990

The enclosed paper "The Synagogue as a Context for Jewish Education" was prepared by Joseph Reimer, a member of our staff and Assistant Professor at the Hornstein Program in Jewish Communal Service, Brandeis University. It is one of a series of background papers prepared for the Commission on Jewish Education in North America.

During our meetings the impact of the supplementary school as an educational setting was discussed. Professor Reimer has begun a study of this topic and in his paper, by using qualitative ethnographic methods, is attempting to understand what makes for a "successful" supplementary school.

As with our other papers your comments will be most welcome. Please contact Virginia Levi of our staff or the author with any reactions you would like to share.

Dear _____:

Enclosed you will find the research paper entitled "The Synagogue as a Context for Jewish Education" which was written by Joseph Reimer of the Hornstein Program at Brandeis University.

In its work, the Commission on Jewish Education in North America saw the issue of the supplementary school as a potentially important one. One of the questions raised was whether there were indeed successful supplementary schools. We were grateful that Professor Reimer agreed to look at this issue and to explore the world of the supplementary school first-hand. He went into the supplementary schools to try and understand from a qualitative point of view what makes a "good" or "bad" supplementary school and prepared this ethnographic study. We are pleased that he was able to begin this work, the first fruits, which will be an important supplement to the further work of the Commission.

Sincerely,

Dear Annette,

On Friday I received from Ginny the copies of my paper on The Synagogue as a Context for Jewish Education. It looks lovely. Many thanks to you and your staff for producing it.

As I'd guess November 8 will be very hectic, I will try to call you at the Mayflower earlier that week to say hello.

Best regards to Seymour.

Sincerely,
