WHY HATE

Excerpts from Dr. Wise's recent address on "Why Hate":

"We hate whom we fear, whom we envy, whom we wrong—by way of self-justification. We never hate inferiors, those whom we imagine to be inferior to ourselves, we never hate those whom we have served, though oft-times we hate those by whom we have been served. We may despise or affect to despise superiors but we never hate them. When there is hatred if only men might remember that with respect to superiors—hateful term—emulation is better than hatred, and with respect to inferiors—still more hateful term—compassion is finer than hatred.

"Individual hatreds can be overcome through reason and the sense of fairness, of understanding and justness which reason inspires, through the friendliness which grows out of understanding. Racial and national hatreds can be overcome only through that understanding which is bound up with awareness of the worth and the rights of others despite all differences. Hate is that of which to be ashamed not proud. Hatred is limitation, not expansion and above all is kin to and begotten of fear even as prejudice is a blend of fear and hatred, fear without the courage of its avowal.

"If only men might see that hatred is of the essence of things pathological, that hatred is a species of disease, a type of degeneracy, that a good hater is evil in himself and the bringer of evil to others. When all this is understood, pride in hatred will vanish.

"Hatred means defeat, never triumph| Hatred means impoverishment, never enrichment, hate means enslavement, never liberation. Hatred narrows, contracts, imprisons life even as love liberates, widens and enlarges life."

Education and Dictatorship

Education has failed to prepare the masses to understand the most elementary economic facts. It is obvious that nationalism in Europe is one of the causes of disintegration. Education ought to warn its subjects against falling into the sort of traps that nations have fallen into. Education is often traditional in its value, or it would not have omitted elementary economic truths. If modern Europe did not see that it was an impossibility to ask vast sums of Germany while it kept her from exporting goods, what had education been doing to prepare for an understanding of the world? Many statesmen saw the economic situation, but could not put their policies across, because the people could not see the why and wherefore. If education does not change, there lies ahead some type of dictatorship of nations and peoples.

—Sir Norman Angell.

Abraham Lincoln

This man, whose homely face you look upon,
Was one of Nature's masterful, great men;
Born with strong arms, that unfought battles won;
Direct of speech, and cunning with the pen.
Chosen for large designs, he had the art
Of winning with his humor, and he went
Straight to his mark, which was the human heart;
Wise, too, for what he could not break he bent.
Upon his back a more than Atlas-load—
The burden of the Commonwealth—was laid;
He stooped, and rose up to it, though the road
Shot suddenly downwards, not a whit dismayed.
Hold, warriors, councillors, kings! All now give place
To this dear benefactor of the Race.
—R. H. Stoddard.

Washington and the Jews

One of the most important Jewish characters in the Revolutionary War is undoubtedly Haym Solomon. Although in the forced service of a Hessian general during the Revolutionary War, he nevertheless managed to assist the American cause by freeing prisoners. He escaped from the British Army in 1778 and settled in Philadelphia where he became exchange broker.

In this position he was of great service to his country acting as one of the chief aides of Robert Norris, the superintendent of finance for the colonies.

Haym Solomon later became treasurer to the French Army. The total of his loans to the American government amounted to $350,000 which was a vast sum in those days. He was never repaid his loan.

In addition to these strenuous activities he was an important leader in communal affairs and a member of one of the oldest congregations in Philadelphia.

The Benediction of Washington

"May the Children of the Stock of Abraham, who dwell in this land, continue to merit and enjoy the good will of the other inhabitants, while every one shall sit in safety under his own vine and fig tree, and there shall be none to make him afraid. May the Father of all mercies scatter light and not darkness in our paths, and make us all in our several useful vocations here and in his own due time and way, everlastingly happy."

Life

Have you found your life distasteful?

My life did, and does, smack sweet.

Was your youth of pleasure wasteful?

Mine I saved and hold complete.

Do your joys with age diminish?

When mine fail me, I'll complain.

Must in death your daylight finish?

My sun sets to rise again.

—Browning.

Individuals will always be the center and consummation of experience, but what an individual actually is in his life experience depends upon the nature and movement of the associative life.—John Dewey.
