ROUND TABLE

The largest gathering in the history of the Round Table attended the first meeting on November 7th with Rabbi Brickner as the speaker. The Round Table bids fair to enjoy a successful 10th year.

The next meeting: Thursday noon, November 21st, 12:15 p. m. at the Al-lerton. By all means be present and bring a friend. Leo Seidenfeld promises some surprises.

SUPPER DANCE

Dr. Al Marcus has been appointed chairman of a committee to arrange a supper dance for December 11th. It will be the first major event held by the Men's Club where wives and sweet-hearts are to be included. Other members of the committee are: Irwin Greene, Dr. L. B. Podis, Irwin Benjamin, Louis Benway, Dr. Bassett, Marvin Gardner, Simon Green and Joe Estrin.

ONEG SHABBATH

A unique custom of "Oneg Shabbat" or "Pleasant Shabbos" is being inaugurated under the chairmanship of Myron S. Stanford. Twice a month on Friday evenings Men's Club members, their wives and friends will meet in the Temple for Kiddush, songs and Sabbath atmosphere. The first meeting will be held Friday, November 22nd at 8:30 p. m. Nathan Brilliant, our Educational Director will present movies of his Palestine tour.

Refreshments will be served.

SUNDAY SERVICES

Among the subjects that Rabbi Brickner will speak on in the near future are the following:

THE MIDDLE CLASS

GETTING ALONG WITH PEOPLE

WITH THE RABBI

In recent weeks, Rabbi Brickner addressed the following organizations: the Council of Jewish Women in Rochester, New York; the Anniversary Banquet of Temple Beth Israel in Jackson, Michigan; the annual conclave of the Indiana Union of Jewish Youth in Indianapolis, and the Fiftieth Golden Jubilee Dinner of the Canton, Ohio Hebrew Congregation. He also participated in a Symposium on "Education at the Crossroads" at Heights High School, and attended the Executive Committee meeting of the Central Conference of American Rabbis in Chicago, where he was appointed a member of the Commission on Revaluation of Judaism and Chairman of the Religious Education Committee.

Last week, Rabbi Brickner addressed the meeting of the League against War and Fascism at the Masonic Auditorium and the Zionists in Baltimore, the Zionist Forum in Philadelphia and the Community Fund mass meeting in Scranton.

THE TALMUD SAYS

Support the aged without reference to religion. Respect the learned without reference to age.

The soldiers fight, the kings are heroes.

Too many captains sink the ship.

Silence is the fence around wisdom.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED to attend the Annual Community Fund Festival and Concert to be held in the Music Hall of the Public Auditorium, on the afternoon of Sunday, November 17th at 3:00 o'clock.

The Community Fund Festival and Concert is held each year on the Sunday preceding the opening of the campaign as part of Greater Cleveland's religious observance of its great plan of mutual helpfulness. Various faiths of the city on this Sunday dedicate their services to the drive.

Included on the program will be musical selections by the Cleveland Orchestra, Rudolph Ringwall, conducting;
the Orpheus Male Chorus, Charles D.
Dawe, director; and an organ prelude by Russell V. Morgan.

Dr. Louis C. Wright, president of Baldwin-Wallace College, will deliver the principal address.

There will be no solicitation or collection of funds.

SEMINAR

The Federation of Jewish Women's Organizations, in cooperation with the Jewish Welfare Fund, is sponsoring a Seminar to be held monthly. Under the general title of "Jewry Moves to Meet Its Problems" the Seminar will consider current developments in Jewish life as they occur throughout the world.

The Seminar is open to interested members of affiliated organizations, to those who wish to take active part and those who would like merely to sit in on the deliberations. Registration is taking place through the constituent member bodies.

OVER HUNDRED MILLIONS JEWISH CAPITAL IN PALESTINE

A Tentative Estimate of the Capital Investment in the Jewish Homeland

By A Cambridge Economist
(From the New Palestine)

An accurate estimate of the annual national income is the greatest desideratum in realistic economics. It is required in most countries by practical statesmen as well as by academic economists. In no country, however, not even in the most advanced, where statistics have reached a comparatively high stage of development, is there anything approaching agreement amongst the various estimates made. Much less is there agreement as to the national capital or national wealth. Notwithstanding special censuses of production and estimates of the values of capital, equipment, etc., there are wide margins between the views of different authorities.

And yet in spite of these differences, such estimates have some value and serve many purposes. They at least convey some measure, they indicate the order of magnitude, and the margin of error. Thus it is useful to know that the British national income is estimated by some at three thousand millions sterling per annum and by others at four thousand millions per annum. If, as is frequently done, the national income is multiplied by ten to give the national capital, then again we have some impression of what has been accumulated in the past, even when the differences between the various estimates are not inconsiderable. The actual error might conceivably be greater than the 25 per cent difference in estimates.

In the case of Palestine many of the most elementary statistics are still lacking. A complete census of capital or of production has never been attempted. We have few figures for the country as a whole, or for the Yishuv. Little wonder then, that no serious attempt has hitherto been made to estimate the value of the Jewish capital already invested and deposited in the banks. And yet in this field it is desirable that some start should be made. Criticisms will be inevitable and will suggest refinements of early estimates. And even if the first effort should be buried under a heap of abuse, it will be possible to claim for it the merit of having challenged others, including Government Departments, local bankers and statisticians to attempt something better. Both the method suggested to include the different items and the estimated figures it is readily conceded ought to be and doubtless will be challenged.

A country's capital investment can be conveniently divided, it is suggested, into three classes:

(1) Fixed Capital. Investment in fixed capital may be comprehensively defined as work of construction, installation, maintenance and repair, with regard to buildings, plant and machinery, transportation, equipment and roads, electrical, telephone and other public utility systems. In the peculiar circumstances of the Jewish National Homeland colonization constitutes indeed the largest.

(2) Working Capital. Investment in working capital consists of net additions to the quantity of stocks in trade and work in progress at all stages of the industrial process. It will be seen that working capital incorporates all the wage payments that have been made in advance of the final realization of the product, as well as the amounts expended on raw materials. At all times big purchases of producers' goods are being made which are simultaneously used up in production.

(3) Foreign Investment. We need not enquire how to measure this, since we are interested primarily in the capital invested in Palestine.

JEWS ARE LEADERS IN ITALIAN ARMY

Rome—Guido Jung, Mussolini's former Jewish Finance Minister, has just arrived at the headquarters of the Italian army in Ethiopia to assume the post of Colonel. He is said to be the second Jew to occupy official rank in the Italian army. General Rudolfo Graziani, of the high command of the colonial troops, is reported to be a Sephardic Jew from Bucharest.

Meyer Attias, an Egyptian Sephardic Jew, has been appointed commander of a newly-formed legion known as "Tiberius" that is to embark for the war area in Ethiopia. Attias, who was selected for the post by Mussolini, has been the recipient of numerous other military honors.
