his children's stories in Hebrew—"Sipurim Yofim"—reads like a World's Gazeer. The 78 children's stories he has already published have thus far sold approximately 75,000 copies.

Friedland is the superintendent of the Cleveland Hebrew schools and director of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Cleveland. He first attracted nationwide attention when he founded the National Hebrew School in New York, an institution which was a landmark in Hebrew education in this country. Under his direction this school was for 12 years regarded as a mecca for Jewish education.

His general pedagogic training was acquired by Mr. Friedland under John Dewey, E. L. Thorndike, Kilpatrick and other outstanding educators at Teachers' College of Columbia University.

Since coming to Cleveland 16 years ago he has become the dean of the Hebrew teaching profession and what causes him to stand out in ranks of Jewish teachers and leaders is that he is equally as fascinating to the adult as well as to the child.

As a Zionist leader—he has served as president of the Zionist District of Cleveland—and as lecturer he has been in demand not only in Cleveland but in dozens of communities in Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania and New York. In English and Yiddish as well as in Hebrew he has held audiences spellbound with his wit, his charm of delivery and rich language. It is this wit and charm of language which he has introduced into his children's stories that have so completely captured the imagination of tens of thousands of children who are studying in Hebrew schools in this country and in other lands where the "Sipurim Yofim" have found an audience.

The complete record of Mr. Friedland's contributions to Hebrew learning reads like a romance which is exceeded only by the romance of the revival of the Hebrew language.—The Jewish Advocate.

THE MODERN MASTER OF STORY-TELLING — A. H. FRIEDLAND

Abraham H. Friedland is essentially a teacher, an educator. As a pedagogue he ranks among the leaders in cultural circles in this country. With one very marked element of difference which is making his name legendary among the Jewish children in Hebrew schools on three continents: his magic way of telling a story and his almost uncanny manner of fascinating our boys and girls.

Friedland's name is known today so widely, that the list of cities, states and countries which he has invaded with

"TRUMPET OF JUBILEE"

Lewisohn's New Novel

The Trumpet of Jubilee is a new book by Ludwig Lewisohn and the first one in three years. It is published by Harper's of New York.

The present tragedy of racial conflicts in Germany is a theme inexpressibly close to Ludwig Lewisohn's heart. It is the theme of this novel—a novel so fired with eloquence and passionate conviction that it must stand as an epic testimonial to one of the greatest social crises in history.

It is the story of Kurt Weiss, a professional man living in Germany. He is a Jew, but to his mind it is more important that he is a German, and on that belief he has founded his entire life. Even the ominous events of 1933 cannot prove to him that he is wrong. When he dies, a tragic victim of his faith, his wife and son are faced with the problem of finding hope and reason in a world from which hope and reason have apparently fled. From Germany they go to France, from France to America—searching for some reality, preparing themselves for a goal which is not to be realized in their lifetime.

But a suggestion of the story's framework cannot give a sense of the book's powerful drama and rich, human quality.

Every type of character moves through its pages, from intellectual to junk man, and through the arguments which their lives present the reader is compelled to consider his own share in a crucial world conflict.

Trumpet of Jubilee had to be written and Ludwig Lewisohn had to write it. To read it is a poignant and memorable experience.

Rabbi Brickner recommends the book.

Sixty-two per cent of Palestine's bee keepers are Jews. There are 15,000 bee hives in the country, mostly in the plantation districts, because of the superiority of orange blossoms over others in honey production. At the Keren Hayesod kvutzah of Gan Shmuel there is a factory for wax needed by apiculturists.

The Yishub has been having a Hebrew University week, in order to stimulate local financial support of the great Mount Scopus institution. Bialik's immortal phrase served as slogan: "Better to have my own small university, but mine own, and under my charge, than a thousand temples of learning in which my share of their building is unseen."
