NEW YORK TIMES SALUTES EQUALITY IN THE ARMY

It is gratifying to know that the United States Army has completed, and will shortly carry out, its program for integration of Negro personnel on a basis of skills only, without regard to discriminatory quotas of any sort. This is as it should be from every point of view. National defense is too big and the Army is too good to have any place for race and color bars. When we get to a sense of basic values we have a chance to further basic human justice.

The basic value here is skill and it has nothing to do with the accident of pigmentation, one way or another. To impose any sort of quota in such a field is unintelligent as well as inhumane. We have come to understand this valuation in many fields, such as sport, for example, and there is no reason why we should not apply it to all.

Beyond that is still another basic value, that of our common humanity; the thing that Jefferson had in mind when he said that we held it to be self-evident that all men were created equal and that they were endowed, obviously equally, with unalienable rights. What the Army is doing is working toward that broader concept of values and every step in that direction is a mark of human progress.

GIVE

GIVE the best you have received from the past to the best that you may come to know in the future.

Accept life daily not as a cup to be drained but as a chalice to be filled with whatsoever things are honest, pure, lovely and of good report.

Making a living is best undertaken as a part of the more important business of making a life.

Every now and again take a good look at something not made with hands—a mountain, a star, the turn of a stream; there will come to you wisdom and patience and solace, and above all, the assurance that you are not alone in the world.

—Sidney Lovett.

CONGRATULATIONS

To Dr. and Mrs. Ben Berger on the birth of a daughter, Barbara Ann.

To Bill Robbins on his election as treasurer of the Jewish Young Adult Council.

DO YOU BELIEVE IN PRAYER?

(Excerpts from essays on the subject of prayer submitted by members of the Confirmation Class.)

There is a Time

"... There is a time in life when you have to confide in God. You can tell your troubles to Him, and, of course, through prayer. One also draws strength from prayer. A person can get encouragement from it and this causes him to do better work..." —H. F.

Everyone Prays

"... Everyone should, and I would venture to say, most people do, pray in some way or another... Prayer eases the heart in times of sorrow. Sometimes prayers come true and sometimes they do not. For example, take the girl who had the whole nation praying that her arm would not have to be amputated. Her prayer was not answered, but she felt God was taking her arm for a reason, so she felt better about it..." —A. F.

Silent Comfort

"... My parents help me in times of trouble, but sometimes I need silent comfort, and that is when I turn to prayer. Prayer is a solace for one's soul... it is comforting... it is thankfulness for being..." —E. F.

If...

"If all the people in the world would pray there would be no war or crime..." —K. G.

Your Conscience

"Prayer is a way of relieving your conscience, whenever you do something wrong... It is a way of thanking Him for all the wonderful things He has done..." —P. H.

Contact

"If you believe in God, your contact with Him is your prayer... It gives you security and inspiration..." —S. K.

Escapism

"I do not believe in prayer. I think a person who resorts to prayer is just an escapist. You can go into the temple and pray for rain, but you would have much better results if you went up in an airplane and dropped dry ice into the clouds... Prayer is like a labor-saving device that hardly ever works..." —I. W.

What Is the Answer?

"Very often prayers are not answered. What answer have I got for this? None, except that if there is a God perhaps he meaningly rejects our prayers. This can also be questioned and no answer can be given. Whether prayer is or isn't heeded, I would say that nearly 100 percent of all the people who are faced by disaster revert to prayer..." —S. S.

Please and Thank-You

"From the time we are old enough to talk most of us are taught by our parents to say please and thank-you when someone gives us something. To me prayer is the please and thank-you which I give to God, for the many favors and gifts he has bestowed upon me. We must pray not only for material things, but for faith and understanding... He who does not pray is a selfish and unhappy person..." —J. W.

A FATHER AND HIS SONS

How Should Parents Treat Their Children?

Having just said good-bye to the youngest of my five sons on his leaving home to earn his living, to make his way in the world, perhaps readers will pardon me for becoming sentimental.

My philosophy for bringing up sons has worked ideally, since not one of them has ever caused one hour's concern. How should parents treat their children? We parents, in my opinion, should realize that when we bring a new life into the world, it becomes absolutely necessary for us to realize that this life is entitled to form its own decisions, to make its own choices, follow its own bent. On reaching teenage, each of my sons was accorded the right to choose his own prep school, to pick his own college, certainly to select his own line of work, his own method of earning a livelihood.

The Only Rule

Dictatorship to me is abhorrent, whether political or parental. Freedom is priceless. Each of us should be allowed to become the architect of his own future, his own fortune, his own service to humanity.

Bringing up my children has proved no problem. Only a few elementary principles have been inculcated. For instance, they have been taught from boyhood up that "it is more blessed to give than to receive," that they first always think of others, that honesty is the only honorable policy, that any turning of sharp corners hurts the turner more than anyone else, that no transaction in life is worthwhile unless it benefits the other party quite as much as one's self. The Golden Rule, they have been taught, is not only a golden rule, but the only rule generating true happiness. Sincerity in every walk of life is cardinal. —Forbes Magazine.
