Sisterhood Meeting

Sunday, May 20th, 10 - 11am in the Temple board room

(last day of religious school and before end of school picnic)

The annual temple Passover Seder held at the temple on the second night of Passover was a great time had by all. Over fifty people were in attendance. The Sisterhood co-sponsored this event.

It's hard to believe the end of Religious School 2001 is already approaching. And that means we are getting ready for the end of school picnic. If anyone can bake for the picnic or would like to help in any other way, please call Carmen Kovarsky at 825-0744.

Sisterhood is hard at work on this summer's annual Sisterhood Rummage Sale to be held on Sunday, June 10th. We need volunteers to help set up the week before and work the sale. If you can help with our biggest fundraiser of the year, please contact Laura Lobar at 851-9383.

Help the Sisterhood raise money by buying Kroger and Jungle Jim gift certificates. Denominations of $10 and up can be used like cash. Contact Barb Stewart at 931-9054 or Ellen Kovaric at 521-8588. Make it easy ~ be a monthly participant!

We would like to remind all temple members IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO JOIN THE SISTERHOOD. We are in the process of forming and electing new committee members so it's a perfect time to get involved for the first time or get reacquainted with the Sisterhood. Want to know more about the Sisterhood, membership and upcoming events? contact sisterhood President Laura Lobar at 851-9383 or membership chairperson Diane Powers at 398-6972.

IT'S TREASURE HUNTING SEASON

"What!" you say??? "It's time for spring-cleaning...again???!!!" Well, we have the solution for you! It is time for Valley Temple Sisterhood's annual rummage sale, Sunday, June 10, 2000. As you clear out your closets, garages, cellars, attics, crawl spaces, etc...please drop off your things at the temple. The temple will be able to begin holding items as of May 29. If you need assistance with some of your larger items, please call Jeannie Hiller at 513-398-172. Remember: your junk is someone else's treasure!

While you are bringing your items to the temple, maybe you can clear an hour from your schedule and help us sort and prepare for the sale. We have redesigned the hours to be very convenient. Take a look at the schedule below and see if you have a moment to help us out. If so, please contact Laura Lobar at 513-851-9383.

IF NOT NOW ... WHEN?

Israel now faces one of the gravest challenges of its 53-year history as a modern Jewish state. All Israelis live under the daily threat of violence and face continuing tension and uncertainty. The purchase of Israel bonds is a tangible and meaningful expression of solidarity with the people of Israel in their time of crisis. Such a situation demands we ask ourselves: If not now... when?

The current situation has devastated tourism in Israel and caused the number of visits to plummet. This not only harms the economy but deeply undermines the morale of Israelis as they face daily threats to their safety. Today, Israelis feel an increasing sense of isolation. If you are unable to visit the Jewish homeland right now, send an expression of your support by purchasing an Israel bond. Your investment connects you with the unfolding story of Israel and its people. If not now... when?

For Israel to pursue peace with security, it will need large investments of foreign capital to build the infrastructure necessary for a stable and secure future. Your annual commitment to Israel Bonds, which remains unaffected by political considerations, helps give Israel the flexibility it needs to negotiate a secure and lasting peace. If not now... when?

For 50 years, Israel Bonds has helped the Jewish state grow and prosper while cementing the ties of the Diaspora to Jews in Israel. Whether in times of peace or conflict, Israel Bonds has sent a unified message of support to all Israelis: Jews in the Diaspora remain with you in your hour of need. Purchasing an Israel bond is not just a financial transaction, but a pledge of love and devotion that sustains the living tradition of thousands of years of Jewish history and renewal. If not now... when?

For more information on how to purchase a State of Israel Bond please call Sam Lobar, Registered Representative, in the Cincinnati State of Israel Bonds office at (513) 793-4440 or 1-888-852-3195.

SOCIAL ACTION PROJECTS

CINCINNATI PASSOVER DELIVERY PROJECT THANK YOU ...

Dear Friends at Valley Temple,

From 60 people in the first year to nearly 350 people only two years later! What a challenge it has been to raise the money, collect the food donations necessary and get the volunteer support needed to ensure that all those less fortunate in our Jewish community have the ability to observe Passover. And thanks, in no small part, to your congregation, we did it! On behalf of the Cincinnati Pesach Delivery Project committee, I would like to thank Valley Temple for helping to make this our most successful program yet!

As our slogan says, "From our Hearts to your Home..." This year hundreds of volunteers showed up at Yavneh Day School to personally package and deliver special Seder Boxes filled with all the essential food and ritual items necessary to prepare an entire Seder. We are grateful to all the Valley volunteers who helped brighten the day of many of our elderly, homebound and new American recipients.

Of course, we would not be able to provide this service without the financial support that each of our sponsoring congregations provide. Thank you for your generous contribution to this project. We are proud that every dollar raised goes directly to support the Pesach Delivery Project and we hope that we can count on Valley Temple to take part in this worthwhile endeavor each year.

A special thanks to all the families who contributed money and food, and to all the religious school children who created the beautiful art projects that went into the Seder Boxes. It is a wonderful feeling to know that people from every corner of our Jewish community come together to make such a meaningful Mitzvah. Thank you very much for being part of it. Wishing you a happy and healthy Pesach,

COMING AUGUST 1
OUR NEW RABBI
SANDFORD KOPNICK

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article about our new Rabbi Sanford Kopnick recently appeared in The American Israelite. We are reprinting it in case you have not seen it.)

Kopnick discusses Reform Judaism, rabbi's role

by Helaine K. Robinson Staff writer

The Valley Temple will welcome Rabbi Sanford R. Kopnick as their new spiritual leader in August. He will replace Rabbi Solomon Greenberg, who has served the congregation for 32 years.

"We feel extremely fortunate to have attracted someone of Sanford's caliber," says Mark Sass, president of Valley Temple. "We realized when we began our search that replacing a rabbi like Sol Greenberg was not going to be easy, and would require someone of unique skill and ability. Unanimously and enthusiastically, those involved in the search feel that Sanford is that person."

Kopnick, who currently serves as spiritual leader of Congregation Achduth Vesholom in Fort Wayne, IN, is not entirely new to Cincinnati. He was ordained in 1990 from the Cincinnati campus of Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion and his wife, Nancy Magnus Kopnick, is a Cincinnati. They were introduced while he was a student at HUC-JIR.

Kopnick is originally from Oak Park, MI. He graduated from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor with an honors degree in communication, and had considered attending graduate school in that field before deciding to enter the rabbinate. "I am a Reform Jew inside and out," he says, explaining his choice between the two fields.

"I spent my high school years working in the religious school office at Detroit's Temple Israel, and thought that I would love the various things rabbis got to do," Kopnick says. "I enjoyed being there and loved the people with whom I was able to interact. I was especially close to and inspired by Temple Israel's education director."

Interestingly, Greenberg also had an influence on a young Kopnick at the Union of American Hebrew Congregations' Goldman Union Camp Institute in Zionsville, IN. "My desire for the rabbinate was strengthened when I attended Jewish summer camp and met rabbis like Sol Greenberg," Kopnick recalls.

Kopnick himself helps to influence young people through various initiatives. During his career in Fort Wayne, he has focused on several youth-oriented social actions. As chairman of the Central Conference of American Rabbis' Committee on Youth, he says, "We advocate for rabbis working with youth. We support the UAHC's Youth Division and the North American Federation of Temple Youth. We present the annual Rabbi Samuel Cook Award for Lifetime Achievement in Youth Work."

"In the five years that I have served as chairman," he says, "my greatest frustration is the number of rabbis who feel that youth work is for the so-called 'junior colleagues.' The more rabbis who create meaningful relationships with kids, the better off the future of Judaism will be."

Kopnick doesn't focus only on young people, however. His master's thesis was on the applications of adult learning theory to Jewish adult education. In addition, he helped create a Catholic/Jewish dialogue group in Fort Wayne and has been outspoken on the separation of church and state. He is an adjunct faculty member at St. Francis College in Fort Wayne, where he also serves on the board of Vincent House homeless shelter and on the advisory council of public radio station WBNI-FM.

During his years at HUC-JIR, Kopnick earned prizes in Jewish education, congregational programming and preaching. He served as the NFTY Ohio Valley rabbinic advisor, and was a staff member at Goldman Union Camp, where he continues to serve on the board and faculty.

Kopnick and his wife, a consultant in developmental disabilities, were married at Valley Temple in 1990, with Greenberg officiating. They have three "active and wonderful" sons, Jonathan, 8, Danny, 5, and Alex, 2. He is currently meeting with committees as he prepares to move to Cincinnati.

"I see Judaism as a vibrant and dynamic religion whose tradition serves both Jews and God," Kopnick says. "Meaningful customs are helpful, and those of minimal relevance can be dropped. New traditions can be created."

"Jewish communal life must enhance the lives of Jews, and the synagogue is the main vehicle for achieving that goal. Our people seek balance in their modern lives and meaningful Jewish activity can help them accomplish that. Torah can be transmitted through the medium of positive worship services as well as interesting classes and social opportunities."

Kopnick sees the rabbi's role in a Reform Jewish congregation as "its spiritual chief operating officer, implementing various programs, classes and service styles which enhance Jewish life and take the congregation in the direction that it has determined."

Kopnick says he has considered further education for himself, but that would be "down the road. Now, I want to focus upon working with my new congregation, on my marriage and on being a great dad to my children. Informally, every day is another opportunity to study and learn. That doesn't change."

"I am very much looking forward to being a part of the vibrant Cincinnati Jewish community," Kopnick says.

SHAVUOT

Shavuot occurs on the sixth of the Hebrew month of Sivan. The name Shavuot ("weeks" derives from its celebration seven weeks (a week of weeks) after Pesach. In the Torah it is also designated by the names Chag Hakatsir, the Harvest Festival and Chag Habikurim, the Festival of First Fruits.

Shavuot is the traditional birthday of the Torah. The Law was said to have been given on this Festival. Therefore it is called "Zeman matan toratenu," the season of the giving of the Torah. On Shavuot, the Jewish people celebrate their covenantal relationship with God and reaffirm their commitment to a Jewish life of study (Talmud Torah) and practice (mitzvah). It was originally the celebration of the completion of the barley harvest with the sacrificial offering of the first fruits of the Temple. Later, it came to commemorate the giving of the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai.

It is customary to decorate one's home and the synagogue with greens and fresh flowers on Shavuot. The greenery is a reminder of the ancient practice of bringing first fruits to the Temple in Jerusalem. It also calls to mind our hopes for an abundance harvest.

It is a mitzvah to reaffirm the covenant on Shavuot. Through the reading of the Ten Commandments at services, which recalls the establishment of the covenant and the contemplation of the importance of Torah and its lifelong study (Talmud Torah), the individual Jew and the community renew their commitment to be a Covenant People (am Berit). Some congregations have revived the old custom of studying Torah late into Shavuot night. This Torah vigil is called "Tikun Leil Shavuot."

The ceremony of Confirmation is a Reform innovation and has added a new dimension to the meaning of the Festival. It provides an opportunity for students of post Bar/Bat Mitzvah age to affirm their relationship to Judaism and the Jewish people. When the Temple stood, Jews brought offerings of first fruits, "Bikurim," to the Temple on Shavuot. Today, parents bring their children to participate in Confirmation. These young people represent the hope and promise of tomorrow. During the service the confirmands reaffirm their commitment to the covenant. The Confirmation's purpose is to encourage the intellectual and spiritual growth of young people, and to strengthen the bonds between them and the Israelites who received the Torah at Sinai and to stimulate their love for God and the Jewish people.

The Book of Ruth is read on Shavuot. The story of Ruth takes place during the barley harvest at the Shavuot season. More important, Rabbinic tradition has seen a parallel between Ruth's willing acceptance of Judaism and the Jewish people's acceptance of Torah.

It is customary to eat dairy dishes on Shavuot. At this time of year, late May or early June, such foods are eaten because of the large amount of cheese produced. Churning and cheese making are common features of spring harvest festivals the world over, when goats, sheep and cows begin to graze more and thus produce more mil. Rabbinic tradition draws an analogy between the sweetness and physical nourishment the Jew receives from milk and honey to the sweetness and spiritual nourishment of the words of the Torah.

While it is the practice of Reform congregations to recite Yizkor only on Yom Kippur and the seventh day of Pesach, some congregations follow the tradition in reciting Yizkor. It memorializes our deceased friends and relatives as well as the martyrs of our generation and previous generations.

RECIPES TO MAKE WITH YOUR CHILDREN ...

French Toast

3 eggs	½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. vanilla	¼ c. milk
1 tsp. orange rind	butter or margarine
6 slices challah or bread	or oil for frying

Beat the eggs well. Add the vanilla, orange rind, cinnamon and milk. Pour into a 9" x 13" pan. Add the challah/bread slices and let sit about 15 minutes. Turn and let sit for a few minutes more. Heat a griddle or frying pan with butter or margarine or oil, about 1 tbs. altogether for each slice. Fry the egg drenched challah/bread on both sides and serve with maple syrup.

Easy Cheese Blintzes

6 slices white bread	1 tsp. cinnamon
8 tbs. cream cheese	8 tbs. butter

Preheat toaster oven to 350 degrees. Roll out bread with a rolling pin, as thin as possible. Using a sharp knife, cut bread into circle. Smear bread with cream cheese and a bit of cinnamon. Roll up like a jelly roll. Melt butter in baking pan. Roll blintz butter; put it in baking pan and bake for 10 minutes.
