September 29th, 1943.

Sir,

According to Press reports that have just reached this Legation, one of the first acts of the newly appointed German military dictator in occupied Denmark, General Kurt Dalwege, was, on personal orders from Adolf Hitler, to start the deportation of some six thousand Danish Jews.

I greatly fear that very little can be done from here to come to the aid of these, my fellow citizens, in their hour of affliction. I want, however, to give you the assurance, Mr. Secretary, that any measures the American Government might deem it feasible and appropriate to take in an attempt to afford protection to the Danish Jewish population, or to alleviate their fate and the threat against their lives, will have my full and unconditional support. As far as financial responsibilities may be involved, I

-/-/-/-

The Honorable

Cordell Hull,

Secretary of State,

WASHINGTON, D.C.

undertake the guaranty towards your Government, or any other government that may incur expenses in the effort to bring help to Danish Jews or other Danish nationals prosecuted by the Nazis, to reimburse such expenses out of the Danish public funds under my control in this country. In making this declaration, I know I am acting in line with the wishes of the people of Denmark.

I should be grateful for an early opportunity to discuss with you, Sir, what it may be possible to do in order to render assistance to my nationals and to protect them against the dangers threatening their existence.

Receive, Sir, the assurance of my highest consideration.

Under instructions from and for the Danish Minister at the present moment absent from Washington.

C.A.C. Brun
Counselor of Legation.
