FELLOWSHIP OF THE MINISTERS

The noted missionary, E. Stanley Jones, tells us of his ashram, where he meets kindred souls in quest of spiritual power and truth. We can see such fellowship possibilities that are not found in solitary study or even in the hearing of set addresses. The ministers of Ohio are looking forward to some such experiences at the coming session of the State Pastors' Convention, January 29 to February 1.

Two hundred minister leaders are each asked to bring a group of four others to Columbus by machine. The five will room together at the very low rates arranged at nearby hotels.

Together they shall rise, together have devotions, together have breakfasts, together take their recreations, and, with another group of five from another part of the state, form a discussion group so that all can evaluate the messages of the public addresses.

What could be a more interesting discussion than ten ministers talking about how they expect their own ministry and Church to encourage a better age. Four days of "simple living and high thinking together," of prayer and discussion, should send ministers back to their tasks with new courage, greater unity of spirit and Pentecostal power.

CHARLES W. BRASHARES,
Convention Chairman, 1931.

Two hundred ministers, whose names will be printed in the next edition of the program, will be asked to serve as group leaders (more than 160 have already agreed to do so). The group leader will assist in carrying out the spirit and purposes of the above statement by Dr. Brashares (made in behalf of the program committee) and help to make the Pastors' Convention a REAL FELLOWSHIP by the following methods:

1. By driving his automobile to Columbus and offering transportation to four other clergymen who, with himself, will constitute the group. This transportation will be given free to those pastors who, because of the unusual economic situation, will otherwise find it impossible to attend this annual fellowship of the ministers.

2. He will arrange for hotel accommodations for his group of five at very reasonable rates at one of the hotels listed elsewhere in the program. It is suggested that the five men stay together in one large room, as indicated in the information relative to hotels, or in adjoining rooms, so that it will be convenient for the group to have fellowship, breakfast, discussion, recreation and devotions together.

3. He will join his group with another group from another section of the state Tuesday evening and Wednesday evening for discussion of program, professional problems or anything else for the good of the convention. These discussion groups should be arranged in hotel rooms.

4. Some ministers are really in distress because of reduced income. They should not be denied the fellowship of the convention. In such cases the group leader will get into touch with members of the pastor's church, suggesting the possibility of helping to defray the modest expenses of their pastor. Or perhaps a group leader, or other ministers, more favorably situated, can themselves assist in paying his registration fee, hotel bill or other expenses. To help meet this situation, the registration fee has been reduced from $3.00 to $1.50, which will make it possible for a pastor to pay the registration fee of some other minister and yet it will cost him no more than in previous years. This affords an opportunity for ministers to share with each other during these trying times.

need not exceed from $8 to $12.*
