EASTERN OHIO
TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

SEVENTY-SECOND ANNUAL SESSION

OCTOBER 29-30 ★ MARIETTA, OHIO

In Memoriam

Waldo R. Lebold passed away Thursday, September 17, 1942, at his home in Cambridge, Ohio. Mr. Lebold was Principal of Cambridge High School and was unusually prominent in civic, fraternal, and church activities in his community.

In the Eastern Ohio Teachers' Association, Mr. Lebold is remembered as the man who for 22 years has served this Association as Secretary-Treasurer. This record of efficient and loyal service has never been equalled in this Association, and it is doubtful if it can be duplicated in any other teachers' association. The E. O. T. A. has lost a capable, courteous, and highly esteemed secretary. Cambridge has lost an inspiring educator who was respected by students, faculty, and townspeople. The entire teaching profession will remember W. R. Lebold as "a gentleman and a scholar".

Marietta Welcomes You . . .

It is with sincere pleasure that we welcome you, the Eastern Ohio Teachers' Association, to Marietta.

We are proud of our city and delighted that you have chosen it as the site of your 1942 meeting.

Rich in historical tradition, Marietta has much to offer you during your visit. The Campus Martius State Museum houses the original Rufus Putnam Home, the River Museum, and a truly fine display of early American historical objects. You will certainly want to visit the Ohio Land Company Office, Mound Cemetery, the Memorial to the Start Westward of the Nation, and Marietta College.

It is our sincere hope that you will find your meeting here so enjoyable that you return again and again.

MARIETTA, THE PIONEER CITY OF OHIO

Marietta was founded in a stormy period. The War of the Revolution was but a few years in the past. Many uncertainties had arisen in the provisional government set up by the Continental Congress. The constitutional convention, which was meeting in Philadelphia when the Ordinance of 1787 was enacted, was filled with many controversies. Revolutionary War soldiers, after seven years of war and absence from their homes were faced with problems, problems of collecting their army pay which, once realized, might have little value since the new confederation of states had not yet established financial stability for currency. These soldiers, without funds, could not purchase lands with which to establish themselves in their home communities. They were looking to the unsettled lands beyond the Alleghenies as compensation for their service in the war and also as a place where they could inaugurate communities and eventually states which, when populations warranted, would be admitted into the federal union on the same basis as the original thirteen.

And the founding of the Northwest Territory here in 1788 was the result of the efforts of these soldiers, both officers and men, who worked together toward a common end. Settlement of the new lands was withheld until these soldiers and their friends in the Congress could set up a government which would provide them with guarantees that the civilization which had been developed in their home communities could be carried on.

Their aims were achieved in that document which was enacted two months before the close of the constitutional convention,—the Ordinance of 1787. This document, passed more than one hundred and fifty years before the Atlantic Charter of 1941, guaranteed the four freedoms about which we are talking today: the freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from fear, and the settlers' guarantee that "laws founded in justice and humanity" by their efforts would find the freedom from want. In that period when there was human slavery in practically all other parts of the world, the framers of the Ordinance were far-seeing enough to inscribe as the fundamental law in Article 6: "That there shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in the said territory, otherwise than in the punishment of crimes, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted."

Teachers, as well as others, are especially interested in Article 3 of this document: "Religion, morality and knowledge, being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged." The history of education in Ohio bears out the fact that the pioneers and their descendants to the present time have been loyal to this mandatory article in the Ordinance.

The beginnings of education in the state were made here in Marietta and Washington County, the best account of which may be found in the thesis of one of your members, Principal Allen E. Rupp, entitled "A History of Public Education in Marietta, Ohio." (1933).

Beginnings of laws for public education in the State of Ohio also had their origin in Marietta in the person of Ephriam Cutler (1767-1853) who, as a member of one of the early state legislatures, helped to frame the first effective law for public schools, a monument on the way to the present effective status of Ohio schools. Religious education was founded by one of the pioneer women, Mary Bird Lake (1742-1802) when she started the first Sunday School in 1789 in Campus Martius. The graves of both these honored pioneers are in Washington County, Cutler's in the Gravel Bank cemetery six miles south near Route No. 7, and Mrs. Lake's, at the Rainbow cemetery a few miles up the Muskingum.

Thus it is significant that Marietta welcomes the Association in a year when all are looking to the future welfare of America. Those pioneers who set in motion the Ordinance of 1787 and their descendants who, by gradual but decisive measures, continued the work of the settlers, faced the future with courage and with efforts borne out of their sturdiness of character, which we in 1942 can emulate.
