THE MOUNT SINAI HOSPITAL OF CLEVELAND

DEDICATION WEEK PROGRAM

JANUARY 2 THROUGH JANUARY 10, 1960

On Sunday, January 10, 1960, we will for the third time in the history of Mount Sinai Hospital hold formal dedication exercises for a new main building.

The first of these ceremonies occurred when the original Mount Sinai Hospital of Cleveland, a converted residence on East 37th Street, was dedicated in 1903. The small structure was acquired by the payment of $1,000 on its indebtedness, and even as it was being dedicated, it was apparent that its two wards and three private rooms could not long serve the purpose for which it was intended.

By 1911 a new movement was under way to plan and raise funds for a larger hospital building, and in 1916 what is now known as our old main building was dedicated. Built at a cost of approximately $600,000, it was one of the most advanced hospitals of its time. There have subsequently been two major expansions of the hospital besides our current Development Program.

From its very earliest days, the pattern of the hospital's development has been determined by the desire of the Jewish community to provide, as its contribution to the health and well-being of the people of Cleveland, the best possible facilities for the care of the sick, the teaching of physicians, and the conduct of medical research. At each stage, the cost of expanding and improving the hospital's services has increased many times over; yet, regardless of the cost, the needs have always been met by an extraordinary display of philanthropy.

The modern facilities and advanced medical programs provided by our new main building place Mount Sinai Hospital among the leading health institutions in the nation, a proper tribute to the thousands of generous men and women who have over the years made possible its humanitarian services.
