REMARKS OF RABBI DANIEL JEREMY SILVER ON HIS 30th ANNIVERSARY

I am grateful to all of you for the warmth of this evening and for the privilege of serving with you over the last three decades. I am particularly grateful to Bud, Chuck and Jim for the nearly twenty years of steady and strong leadership they gave The Temple during those decades. They brought energy and vision to their office and also that necessary patience with detail which is the daily stuff of Temple life. I am only sorry that Abe Luntz and Bert Krohngold, Zichronam L'Ve'acha, could not join them on this platform. During the early years they were surrogate fathers who helped me over the inevitable rough spots. They have my undying love and respect.

It has been a great privilege to serve with these fine men who have represented all of you. For a congregation is just that — a community of people. Temples, like all religious institutions, tend to be large buildings occupied by a few professionals; and that is the way it should be. The religious responsibilities are everybody's responsibilities, and a religious institution should be one in which everybody participates.

A synagogue is one of the last great voluntary communities in our world. The Temple depends on the skills, energies, and determination of its membership. You are the strength of The Temple. Your willingness to share, to serve, and to offer your talents is our guarantee of a significant future. I am most grateful, as I have always been, for your willingness to offer time and talent to an institution which we care so much about.

No institution is an island. We draw strength from the strength of our community and necessarily frequently call upon its resources. I am particularly grateful tonight to these who have shared with me the concerns about the welfare and well-being of our community and who are here tonight to enjoy this moment with us, with me.

In prospect, thirty years seems like a long, long time. When I look back, thirty years seems but the bat of an eye. I remember coming here on the night train from Chicago, Edith referred to this occasion, to speak at a Mr. and Mrs. Club service that spring. I'll confess that I was scared and that I could not quite decide what I was scared about most. This would be the first time I had been in the pulpit of The Temple since my voice had broken during Confirmation services. I knew that sitting behind me would be one of the most respected rabbis of the country a deservedly famed orator who also happened to be my father, a father whose love had never kept him from needed correction. I also knew that out there in the sixth row center would be a newly minted fiancée who had heard me be persuasive, but never in public; and I did not want to disappoint her. I was also going to speak to the one congregation in the world that knew me in a way a young rabbi would rather not be remembered — people who remembered the short pants, the pranks and the noisiness and who would expect me to remember their names even though I had not seen many of them for years.

That Sunday morning I learned the real virtue of a pulpit. Till then I had thought that a pulpit was simply a convenient place to put a manuscript. Not so. A pulpit exists so that the congregation cannot see your knees tremble. It exists to provide a grip for your hands so that nobody can see them shake.

Well, we survived. I asked Marie today how many sermons were now in my file. The answer was six hundred and forty-seven. That is a lot of sermons, and most of them were pretty good if I say so myself! I have reached that stage of life when even the comments of my favorite Mrs. Malaprop no longer faze me. You know our custom on Sunday morning after services is that I come down from the pulpit and many of you file past. Well, the other day Mrs. Malaprop came past and smiled: "Rabbi, I want you to know that every sermon that you give is better than the last." This after six hundred and forty-seven sermons! Enough of that, but I do want you to know that I fully plan to have at least one thousand sermons in that file before I hang up my preaching toga.

As you know, most ancient languages did not have a separate system of numbers. Greek, Latin and Hebrew use the alphabet for numbers. Aleph is one, Beth is two, Gimmel is three. Thirty is Lamed. In Hebrew a goodly number of these letter-numbers have the same sound as actual words. The root Lamed means to learn, I take this as a warning to me or to anyone who serves thirty years in a profession. After thirty years you have reached a time when you think you know the routines and have mastered the skills, but beware. Remind yourself to not to keep on doing things the same way. Times change. There is new knowledge. There is much to learn.

I came back to The Temple in 1956. 1956 was the height of the comfortable Eisenhower era. People were flooding into suburbia. Suburbia would fulfill every American's dream and ultimately set a standard for the world. In 1956 churches and synagogues were locked upon by many as institutions charged with reinforcing values of which everybody was confident: family, independence, personal dignity, democracy, generosity, the prospect that prosperity would spread its blessing around the world.

It didn't quite work out that way. Instead of becoming simpler, life became more complex. Most have recognized that suburban living is not all that it was cracked up to be, that the problems of the city follow you out. We've all shared the anguish of Vietnam, Three Mile Island, and recently Chernobyl. Thirty years ago, the single family parent was a rare phenomenon. Few had heard of support groups. People disported themselves, but nobody had the chutzpah to call such activity. The New Morality. Over the intervening years, much of what we took for granted in congregational practice has been brought into question. We have had to break new ground. There is now a much greater need for guidance toward a meaningful philosophy of life and a greater desire to talk together about the problems that concern us. We always talked about the political problems, but now we need to deal with personal and spiritual problems. There is a religious thirst which was not there thirty years ago, at least in the same degree. If congregations, and The Temple in particular, do not find ways to be useful in that search, if we continue the comfortable liberalism of the past — and we ought never abandon the prophetic urgencies of these concerns — we will fail many who turn to us out of a real need. It is no longer enough to say to people 'make up your mind.' 'Anything you do is alright as long as you do not hurt somebody else.' To say this is to default on a primary and inescapable responsibility — which is to raise people's moral consciousness, to hold up standards. Notice I did not say to enforce standards. The religious voice cannot be simply patient and understanding. There must be convictions and sometimes even outrage. A synagogue needs a patient heart and a strong backbone. We need to remind ourselves that we are not animals but human beings created in the image of God, that we have concerns which transcend the getting and the spending, and that the central business of any religious institution involves our relationships to our souls, to God, and to what is right.

Thirty years ago, in 1956, Israel was newly minted. Two-thirds of the Jewish community had survived the Holocaust and somehow found the strength to recreate its national home. We were building new edifices to God around the country. There was a sense of renewed confidence, of energy. It all seemed fairly clear. We knew what was right. Israel was not yet the country which sported a Kahane or a Sharon, a place where the twin dangers of religious fanaticism and national xenophobia was real; whose government made questionable policy decisions. Thirty years ago our relationships with Israel were simple and satisfying — an age old dread had been realized. In recent years our relationships have become more complex and less satisfying. What was black and white has become various shades of gray. We find ourselves not unlike parents who continue to love despite. We have concerns, yet if we do not continue to do all that we can to insure the survival of our people, no one else will. In our cruel world power often defines morality. For us the moral imperative is simplicity itself: If I'm not for myself who will be for me. So, a primary concern of this congregation must be what it has always been, to encourage all that strengthens this people Israel — here in Cleveland, in the nation and in our world — even though our community like all communities has its less than noble moments and our people do not always live up to the highest standards.

My first congregation was in a little town called Danville, Illinois. I went there every other weekend from the Hebrew Union College. The small, rectangular building we occupied had been built in the 1890s. It could accommodate perhaps 100 people. There was a small balcony for the choir in the back and the back wall of the balcony contained what would be called in a cathedral, a rose window. This window was green. When the building was under construction someone must have found a card with a picture of the two Tablets of the Law with the first words of each of the Ten Commandments in Hebrew. A local glass painter had done pretty well with the Hebrew until he came to number ten: Lo Tahmod, "You Shall Not Covet." He forgot the T. In Hebrew the Daled and the Resh look much alike and he had written the last letter as a Resh rather than a Daled. In so doing the Tenth Commandment had become Lo Hamor, You Shall Not Be an Ass. I preached for two years with the Tenth Commandment staring me in the face and I grew to appreciate it. In some ways it's easier to obey than, You Shall Not Covet. I pledge to you that over the years ahead I will try to live up to the Commandments in their original and revised form.

Dear Rabbi Dan,

Congratulations and best wishes on your 30th anniversary as Rabbi of The Temple. It does not seem possible that 30 years have passed since you joined The Temple and I was a pre-confirmand. Then, when I was 14, I believed you to be everything a Rabbi ought to be. Now, with the passage of time and, hopefully, a little wisdom, I know you are. Myrna, Robby, Alyson and I are proud to have you as our Rabbi.

We are very sad that an unavoidable conflict makes it impossible for us to join the congregation in honoring you on June 5th. We will certainly be there in spirit.

Also, I want you to know that Myrna and I are going to make a concerted effort to be more active congregants.

How could we all have known?
This whirl of life that we're all in,
through which these years have flown,
has made the goals we try to win
a time in which we've grown.

And while we've fought the daily war your strength has eased our way.
Just knowing you could help explore revived our will to handle more,

So now, herewith, we wish you well!
We're happy we can share

Dear Rabbi Silver -

At our board meeting last night, the Temple Young Associates voted to make a contribution in honor of your 30 years at The Temple to the Abba Hillel + Virginia Silver Fund. As the new presidents of the TYA, Ira and I are delighted to begin our term of office in this happy way. On behalf of the entire TYA, please accept our congratulations on this important anniversary. Since January, Myrtle's back has been presenting some problems. Therefore, our activities have been quite restricted during this period.

Although we will be unable to share the happy occasion of your big "30" in person, our good wishes for many more happy & productive years are with you. Best regards to Abele.

Dear Ida and Gene,

I want to thank you for the lovely contribution to the Abba Hillel and Virginia H. Silver Charitable and Educational Fund in honor of my thirtieth anniversary here. I don't know where the years went, but they have been good years. I really only feel the passage of time when I see our children become such fine adults.

Adele brought me a good report and, as you can imagine, it's lovely to have her home. She also brought a check for which I can only say thank you and tell you that over time, and the right time, it will be used for your grandchildren. Talk to you soon.

Dear Rabbi Dan & Adele,

We wanted to add our personal congratulations on your two momentous occasions. We thoroughly enjoyed the celebration last night - the planning, attendance, and the radiating warmth, were testimony of the way your congregation feels about you both. You must feel an enormous amount of pride and accomplishment.

We are so pleased to be members of The Temple and are thankful for your guidance and friendship.

We look forward to hearing your "1000th" sermon! Our best wishes for at least 30 more years of anniversaries with the Temple and each other!

Dear Rabbi Dan,

It is not possible that a handsome and youthful looking gentleman like yourself, married to a schoolgirish beauty like Adele, could be in the pulpit for 30 years, and yet I always (well, almost always) believe what I read in the papers.

The above elongated sentence is to congratulate you on this milestone and to wish you many more years of giving people solace, strength and inspiration.

Phyllis and I also send you and Adele a cup brimming with love -- and California sunshine.

Dear Rabbi Dan:

We were with Clem and Frank several times the past two weeks and they mentioned the occasion of your 30th anniversary as the Rabbi of The Temple.

I want to express my feelings on this memorable event and wish you many more years in the best of good health and dedication.

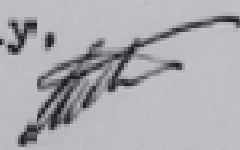

I recall many of these notable events that took place with your father and now I have the pleasure of seeing history with you.

It is a large Congregation and I am sure you have had your problems but I have only been exposed to the pleasantries.

Nan and I will be in Cleveland for my grandson, Jeffrey's, graduation from college the weekend of June 21. Jeff has had his problems with epilepsy since he was 15 years old and it is difficult for him, but he has managed. There has been a lot of progress in epilepsy but in Jeff's case the location of the severity is inoperable, so that it is a question of balancing medication, etc. I am proud of what he has accomplished and hopefully as time goes on there will be a solution.

Nan joins me in sending best wishes to Adele and you, and hope that we will have the pleasure of seeing you sometime in the near future.

Sincerely,

Dear Rabbi Silver,

Congratulations on your having completed "30 years" of your wonderful leadership and guidance at "The Temple". It brought back many memories for me. Our family were members of the Temple at E. 55th and Central. I was a member of the confirmation class in 1929, the year you were born, and the gift our class gave you. Ralph and I wish you and Adele many happy years together, and a lot of pleasure from your wonderful sons.

We are fine and it is hard to believe we are living in Florida almost 7 years now.

Our family is fine, Joyce + Joseph York live in Bryn Mawr, Pa. + have 3 lovely children, one an Electrical Engineer. one in real estate in Orlando, Fla. & the youngest a senior at Northwestern U. Our daughter Janet Kazdin (divorced) lives in Boca and selling real Estate & has 3 lovely children, one daughter in sales & marketing in Denver, another daughter selling radio advertising in Cleve, & a son at Ohio State.

We celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary last June 30th. Were married at the Temple Chapel on Ansel Road. We are very happy here, & have some family here. I am very busy and involved.

Ralph and I wish you continued success, good health and much happiness. Would like to hear from you.

Sincerely
Elsie
