

Daniel Jeremy Silver Collection Digitization Project

Featuring collections from the Western Reserve Historical Society and The Jacob Rader Marcus Center of the American Jewish Archives

MS-4850: Daniel Jeremy Silver Papers, 1972-1993.

Series III: The Temple Tifereth-Israel, 1946-1993, undated. Sub-series B: Sermons, 1950-1989, undated.

Reel Box Folder 45 14 728

The Sayings of Our Mothers, 1960.

THE SAYINGS OF THE MOTHERS

The Temple May 8, 1960

Rabbi Daniel Jeremy Silver

Teachers expect the unexpected, and the class seldom disappoints. With age we become creatures of habit. Like Pavlov's dogs, our responses are conditioned. But the child retains an originality, a creativity of spirit, a refreshing unpredictability.

I am thinking now of a Confirmation examination of several years ago.
The question required an explanation of each of the Ten Commandments. Most of the answers were correct and straightforward, but one paper explained the Fifth Commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother", in this fashion: This according means that we are to be grateful to our parents for raising us/to the best of pair abilities." And we are amused, but I was also impressed, because I think that, intentionally or not, this young person put his finger on a truth which our age has all too often, and to the hurt, forgotten.

We think of the child-parent relationship in terms of the responsibilities of the parent. We think or child development in terms of child engineering. We speak of child-rearing, but very seldom of a child's growing up of himself. We think that there is a right way to raise our children, a right way which is equally applicable we all parents, and that any failing of our child to achieve in maturity the goals and the standards that we have set for him in our dreams is a failure on our part. For today we not only accept the responsibility of bearing children, but we bear the responsibility of their adult achievement throughout our lives.

Indeed, I sometimes think that our factory civilisation has borrowed the terms of mass production and attempted to apply these to the parent-child relationship. When we have a child we immediately consult the management experts, the firm of Gesell and Spock, and they tell us how we are to establish the production line which will take the raw material, a baby, and transform this raw material into the finished product, a competent, fine adult. We have our own form of quality control, the various diagnostic tests, the intelligence tests, the vocational tests which counsellers in the school systems give for us. We attend executive management training courses sponsored by child guidance centers and parent-teacher discussion groups. We receive quarterly and semi-annual statements -- report cards, they're called -- which enable us to check up on the profit and loss, the movement and growth of our child toward becoming the finished product which we expect.

And when there is some breakdown in this system, when there are discipline problems or school problems or emotional problems we rush to the experts; we tinker with a program of discipline here of there, and we presume that all is well. And if it is not, well, the experts have an expertese of psychological jargon which can always rationalize and explain any failing, and the failure is always ours, the parents' — never the philosophies, never the system, never the psychology which we presumed to be following.

Professor Jacques , the very capable critic of American life, said very succinctly a few weeks ago that American parents are suffering from jitters. Now, parenthood is always a traumatic experience. The Talmud already speaks of the , the heartache of raising children. There is no easy way to raise a child. But I believe firmly that we in America, because we presume too much, because we presume that our shildren are infinitely plastic and malleable, that they are clay in the hands of parent-sculptors. Because we assume this we take upon ourselves an added responsibility, a responsibility we cannot discharge, a responsibility we cannot discharge because God has not covenanted with any mother and father that if they invest so much time, so much intelligence, so much tenderness in their child, their child will become a fine adult. It simply is not so. It is one of the vagaries — the unfortunate vagaries — of life which an adult must learn to accept.

The apple does fall sometimes very far from the tree.

We are standing here on Mothers' Day. The relationship of a mother to a child is of the most intimate of natures, intimate more than that of the father to the child. Why so? Largely because a mother is with the child from waking into sleep. A mother understands instinctively, through her intimate experience in relationship, the emotional subtleties of her child, her child's uniqueness, his personality, that which makes him different from every other child, the reason that all the generalizations of pedagogues and psychologists fail in the immediate instance of raising her child. And knowing this, she tailors, she chooses, she adapts the psychology, philosophy, the religion of her day for the benefit of her child.

Recently, an Aukland, New Zealand newspaper polled a series of mothers as to their teachings, their experience in child raising. How are we to train our children to steer past the dangers of this day? — this was the question. And the best answer, the answer of every good mother: We must not stuff their ears with the wad of our convictions nor tie them to the masts of our principles. Each child's soul is a thing apart and must realize itself. To force it into certain channels, however good, is to impoverish it and to impede its growth. It is ours to teach it to be strong, to choose the best. It is ours to advise, to warn, to guide, and to encourage. We cannot expect to hand down our accumulated worldly wisdom and to have it accepted by our young people without question or without test. We must not stuff their ears with the wads of our convictions.

Abraham Lincoln's mother was an indifferent mother. His father was temperamental and autocratic. They did not follow any of the tried and true philosophies of child rearing.

A young mother came to me recently and complained that she had followed every maxim of the book -- and by the book she meant some family life manual, not the Bible -- she had followed every maxim of the book, and her child was still sucking his thumb and having nightmares in his sleep. And each and every one of us, my friends, knows of conscientious, good, intelligent parents, loving parents, dedicated parents, who have had children who have exhibited none of their fine qualities of character.

This being so, let us at least relax in our parenthood. Let us at least cease to have the jitters, to gorge ourselves on that plethora of advice and counsel which streams into every newspaper and magazine, telling us exactly the right way to raise our child. In raising a child the important thing is not amassing knowledge about child psychology but in amassing knowledge about your child, his personality, his needs, his sensitivities, his talents and his limitations. Perhaps I can illustrate this truth in another way. We read together this morning from the "ayings of the Fathers", that wonderful book of good advice, that anthology of rabbinic wisdom which is contained in our Mishnah. A teacher was reading in one of our classes the "Sayings of the Fathers", and she commented on the compactness of the work -- so much in six slender chapters, so much wisdom, so much knowledge, and so much insight. And from the back of the room, the epichorus, the inevitable skeptic and cynic in every class, piped up, "You know, I bet if they ever collected the sayings of the mothers the printing presses would still be running."

I cannot deny that our women are voluble, and sometimes garrulous, but a strange fact emerges if we search out our tradition. Look through your Bible; look through your Talmud and your Midrash and your musar literature, the great ethical literature of the Middle Ages, and excise from it all the didactic literature, all the advice on pedagogy and child rearing attributed to mothers, and you will not be able to fill a single chapter equal in length to one chapter of the "Sayings of the Fathers".

Indeed, I searched out our Bible, and I found only nine verses of its many tens of thousands, dealing even indirectly with a mother's heart to heart talk with her child, the arched eyebrow and the pointed finger of guilt. These nine verses emerge in the last chapter of the Book of Proverbs. They are attributed to the mother of a certain King Lemuel, who is otherwise unknown to us. A tradition has it that King Lemuel is none other than King Solomon, that the mother here is Bathsheba, and that the occasion for this mother's lecture on dereliction and on duty is this: Solomon married, rather late in his life, the beautiful daughter of the Egyptian Pharaoh. He brought her to Jerusalem, and after the wedding festivities he spent the night in carousal and merriment, and as might be expected, not unnaturally, he slept long the next morning. There was only one difficulty -- in those early, primitive days the only key to the sanctuary in which the morning sacrifices and the morning prayers were offerred hung in the bedchamber of the king, and none was willing to rouse the king from his sleep on this, his wedding night. And so that day the sacrifices went unoffersed and the prayers were not celebrated. It became a matter then of public scandal, this sleeping late of the king, and his mother, as mothers will, not wasting the opportunity, hastened to his side with these words of advice:

O my son, give not thy strength unto women,
Nor thy ways to that which destroyeth kings.
It is not for kings to drink wine:
Nor for princes to say: 'Where is strong drink?'
Lest they drink, and forget that which is decreed,
And pervert the justice due any petitioner.
Leave strong drink for him that is mortally ill,
Leave wine for the bitter of soul;
Let them drink, let them forget their misery
And remember their poverty no more.
Rather, O king, open thy mouth for the dumb,
In the cause of all such as are appointed to destruction.
Open thy mouth, judge righteously,
Plead the cause of the poor and the needy.

Now you will find in our Bible, my friends, many noble women, women of great virtue, women of great courage, women of profound, selfless love, a Miriam devoting her days to the protection of the infant Moses, a Hannah pouring out in song her gratitude for her infant son, a Deborah encouraging the weak-hearted men of her day to fight against the venging enemy, a Ruth speaking perhaps the greatest words of love and loyalty spoken in all literature. You will find great women, women of valor, in our Bible. But you will not find that these women felt it necessary to set down their techniques of child raising, their philosophies of child pedagogy and child development.

Why so? Is it that the status of women was so low in those primitive times that no one bothered to listen to them. Not so. In the beginning of the Book of Proverbs we read that the wise son is advised by his father to heed his instruction, but to give ear equally to the teachings of his mother, "for these are a chaplet of grace around his head and a pendant of beauty around his neck". Is it that the women of those days were inferior people, that they spoke nonsense not worth listening to? Again in the poem of the woman of valor we read that "she opens her mouth with wisdom; the law of kindness is always on her tongue." Our mothers — the mothers of Israel were, as our contemporary mothers, women of intelligence, women of insight, women who knew how to raise sons and raise daughters.

I suspect that the silence of the mothers is due to a profound insight, to understanding. The woman knew her son. She was aware of the total personality of her daughter. She sensed every emotional reaction of her child. She knew her child's limitations and his capacities. She spoke to the child -- to the child directly, and what she spoke was intimate, intimately related to the inner secrets of the child's life. Her words were treasured up by her sons and by her daughters, but they were never intended to be generalizations on standards as to how to raise a child. A father must set down words. The press of business, the necessity of earning a living forces us out of the house during most of the waking hours of our children. Our hopes, our standards, our experience can be communicated to them only through the medium of words -the heart to heart talk, the ethical will, the letter. But not so with the mother. A man may have the highest standards of probity in his business, but his son will not see his father in his business relationships. But a son will see his mother -- all of her housewifely beauty -- for they are together, they are one. A mother teaches charity when she is great-hearted to all those in her house. A mother teaches love by giving love. A mother teaches gentleness by the quality of her speech. A mother teaches understanding by the clearness of her sight. A mother teaches self-discipline by the manner in which she conducts herself. A nother teaches by example, directly, immediately, effectively. And more than this -- a mother knows what must be taught to the child, because a mother knows her child.

There is an old Yiddish proverb to the effect that there is no good death and no bad mother, and if we except those women who bear children but do not mother them, I think that there is a great deal of truth in this proverb, because the mother, knowing her child, knows better than any expert outside the home what that child needs — to be pushed, to be left alone; to be disciplined strictly, to be given a great deal of freedom and responsibility; to be handled frequently, or to be allowed to go his own way; to be exposed to all the cultural opportunities of life, or to be allowed to set his own pace of growth and of learning. Some children must be pushed, others must not. Some children must be handled, others must not. Some children have great gifts, qualities of genius which must be developed, and others do not. And this the mother uniquely knows. This the mother is uniquely qualified to develop in the child.

Silence of the mothers is born of profound wisdom, and if we reverse this and look to the inability of the modern mother often to trust her own common sense, the need for the modern mother to write article after article and book after book on how she raises her children and how others should raise their children, perhaps we can understand this need by understanding our age. For technology, the automobile, labor saving devices, prosperity have broken the age old quarantine which immobilized the woman in her home. The modern woman is a free agent; not so her grandmother or her great-grandmother. She determines how her time is to be allocated, whether she will work outside the home, how much of civic activity she will engage in outside the home, what social activities will be hers outside the home. And many modern mothers no longer know their children. They no longer have this intimate relationship which allows them to sense, to know the uniqueness of their child, because you cannot accept when your child is young every bridge, luncheon, and afternoon tea, every golf date, every bowling league match, and be with your child when your child needs you and know your child as your child needs to be known.

No one would put our mothers back into their homes. But the pathetic urgency with which our mothers are turning to the child experts for guidance testifies, it seems to me, to only one truth, the truth that they no longer know their children. They are no longer one with them. And many children will grow up to be fine adults despite neglect, but many children have not the emotional balance instinctive to them. And the child neglected, even if he grows into a competent adult, will go his way alone, and will not return love for love not given, time for time not spent.

If there is any secret to the raising of children it is time, not technique. It is patience, not psychology. It is knowing your child, not knowing all that the world knows about child psychology and child development. It is being a mother, not an expert. It is being the mother, father of your child.

Where there is love and where there is devotion, where there is good sense and where there is sensitivity there is a good parent. Several decades ago there was a very popular Armenian philosopher and poet, Kahlil Gibran, who said much of what I have been trying to say this morning:

Your children are not your children.
They are the sons and daughters of Lif's longing for itself.
They come through you but not from you,
And though they are with you yet they belong not to you.

You may give them your love but not your thoughts,
For they have their own thoughts.
You may house their bodies but not their souls,
For their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams.

You may strive to be like them, but seek not to make them like you. For life goes not backward nor tarries with yesterday.

You are the bows from which your children as living arrows are sent forth.

The Archer sees the mark upon the path of the infinite, and He bends you with His might that His arrows may go swift and far.

Let your bending in the Archer's hand be for gladness;

Even as He loves the arrow that flies, so He loves also the bow that is stable.

Be a stable bow to your children. Invest your time and your good sense in them. Be natural, not studied, toward them. Understand them -- their needs, their personalities, and their hopes. For in such understanding lies the secret of being a good parent, the secret of the fulfillment of the hopes and prayers that on such a day as this each of us carries deep in his own heart.

Amen.

Kahlil Gebran

And a woman who held a babe against her bosom said, Speak to us of children.

And he said:

Your children are not your children.

They are the sons and daughters of Life's longing for itself.

They come through you but not from you,

And though they are with you yet they belong not to you.

You may give them your love but not your thoughts,

For they have their own thoughts.

You may house their bodies but not their souls,

For their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams.

You may strive to be like them, but seek not to make them like you.

For life goes not backward nor tarries with yesterday.

You are the bows from which your children as living arrows are sent forth.

The Archer sees the mark upon the path of the infinite, and He bends you with His might that His arrows may go swift and far.

Let your bending in the Archer's hand be for gladness;

even as he loves the arrows that flies,

so He loves also the bow that is stable.

Proverbs

31

What, my son? and what, 0 son of my womb?

And what, O son of my vows?

Give not they strength unto somen,

Nor they ways to that which destroyeth kings.

It is not for kings, 0 Lemuel, It is not for kings to drink wine:

Nor for princes to say: 'Where is strong drink?'

Lest they drink, and forget that which is decreed,

And pervert the justice due to any petitioner that is afflicted.

Sive strong drink for him that is mortally ill,

ready to perish,

And wine white the bitter in soul;

Let him drink, and forget his poverty,

And remember his misery no

Rather, O. bring, Open they mouth for the dumb,

In the cause of all such as are appointed to destruction.

Open they mouth, judge righteously, plead the cause of the poor and needy.

"How are we to train our children to steer past all the dangers of their hour?

We must not stuff their ears with the wads of our convictions, nor tie them to the masts of our principles—each child's soul is a thing apart and must realize itself.

To force it into certain channels, however good, is to impoverish it at least and to impede its growth. It is ours to teach it to be strong, to choose the best. It is ours to advise, to warn, to guide and encourage. We cannot expect to hand on our accumulated worldly wisdom and have it accepted by our young people without question or test."

a theat syracts the samepators. The american makeline simply the age maken my considering of hasine our removed commenced, yours much and considered and refundingly improbables

Rom chainting more of a confusionalism agreementation some years much y as papers man attribut formed, one were not, on expenden of come of the commence of the party of market of market of the commence of the party of the commence of the c deficition more affected to their manustant y an should almong be quitaful to your parantes fearming rounded your to the bout of your aluces + his one amandal a many improved anterpleaning on my could consume higher the many of trade, annance considered madeling halping that property contin and we the bank of their marking, we open of reminer a county rules can 1 a could from the war while I could do many who there have meaning from the free harbor and the president and the but in much many and a compating the many and a compating the same and the same Amend and property truck was night dawn - Apple me comme production procedures much the and procedure march on to own Cabedy. holes madeling them and accomming we have a second on the second of the toren manife the Cutiles, designations absume the forther manufacture of the forther of the forther of constituent reflect faithfully & courte formande. Who storm district and the format and on the appendix of compile memory, commended to missioner expenses Commenden of my cong to any to any commentation - no presented to any married are made the me here and any sent of author spect and Carett and them many many and improved a court of the court of Penert tours Dan endouse among Han men systembied transmiss. Deformation and anticomplet trait prometing and maile granting controls Regularia Variantema o Chang report south granting come continue and the many term his a his alimente offered an same amount of many to at it were many any many out many a man contraction and many and the days and the demand where many where anything and and - con family Come for gridely parallely and about them sylves - War with the

which is to someth - to someth on the middle of a comment of the property of the something of the something of the something of the sound to produce the sound to be sound to be sound to be so the sound to be sound to one segme a man has been and way as a right way to now your ships - total cam mysel my can be he he and - and think difficult and puplishen complemen one the and namely of powers were have neglighed to all these cando pay elulay homening, we time to could from willen and any in the hundry a so endated - the final from reflect his missing on love of at - was final adult reflect on steels

as personal to exa y it was not very began candidan , had me been responsibility for come usually trained , my full it difficul to . In maland comme was a said. Every more much be about the must be some windered product of the paid of of out a levelopment between own own act, The men when I Comparedor Daly Jagoria Barryan would st quark sweeply is smaller possess. Jullay - can falled the pourt a sented represent our Des reduced to a serious - to deferthe laws - and fallent and which is refined to me the product on the party of an along of our land a met of the prompted in a met not a transfer on dender met general mit dender on a conso becomes bringled not what sends engent has been the , denuter mal a mayment matthe and an unileffered untermitie & when , I fullow Oba bank - u young makke confuction to me remake - and come and were a family lafe manual not the Ruber - and on chies they regulation. We call Know of loving entirely have contained per from question.

andrew alcoholing the probe the love of him with the trade of the love of the love of the love of the person with trade of the love of the person o on for to day on the bould stand some should be sometime - on on the manual puts the se mindle count would broken the market after he has broken a man to before my forther maken. Here

Every home is empto. Parame my remember leaves where en later where en later accounts all come manufactor. In tempto by children concern tong it all . Buy faller a maller Known that the concerns motion to the faller a maller Known that the concerns motions to the favore mounts are the favore and auticat they generally his character comments having more much assume all he can always the parliamentage of their way and track have he can be a complete and track in the candidate of matter and the candidate of the property that a comment to the complete that a comment to the complete the complete the candidate of candidate of Catilles Machenel madelen Armong a clara from tent organists anterdos of good admits " The daying yes Futher". The telles for the daying yes Futher". The telles for mosting to an analysis of the more with the of our or analysis.

a tracke commended on the companion of the street - From the said the street of the order of the said the street of the order the bank of the color than the bank of the color than the said property exp " 2' 20 best of they color the said of the summer.

Sayong of the molecule the purchase premier would stall be more that was found to be sure that was to be sure that we want to be sure to me to m on the Bilds & Tulmed my densite and reopper and by un made matriale one foreness emanes on militarile lande neuros y the young mon, Delinal hellmony the many hands to bear hand against the despending eng, Human pareny and has heard in commences to loss for the gift & a son, Rule operato reducer the mod town appear of love - denate - all etterulano. The Bule lumby & portog lan marrow of mela y has many without - but - the tom of themen's of weren you well ful only of realist spinner opposes set commenden & accompanied was an numeral equations + can postery fings, and heat it if the Court of Promitte on although undergreen the Lamina report his matters moral & some, an un using total the him that were very represent was every of an openin mine of Braile Shake Level - a grain although make species species and the films mapitalism, are, to low formy balance long in morning land and marginess of the Egypten Phonesis - which reproduced equipment in the British and a total up hay & last common to making must have been morning, The order market have been morning, Theorem market and allowers. Orders and market have been tole - but i there somed by the one Kop to the Tumple samulary hung - the King had during to the King tombuting premient the open of us tempe for morning proper or wifeen, Instent belower and because a matter of puller occurred and in the desired to party to party to party to few deals allow and the below to be solved a factor to be solved in the below in the below

From the summer to be seened to the summer of the seened o

Led hum de to better ou someth field hum de to better ou someth bet hum de to payed to poments and remember we make Russe course of march process courses of march, pudge pupeling and placed as course of an and pour a con march.

and the form of the state of the product of the state of the sale of the sale

The relate board of from the commendation on a mount of family limited and at some or other one was a but of press of the matter of the relation william of the matter of a madern matter put set met matern in amount to an internion

We much adoleg the form with the west of an Committee, and the them to the much of an principle — and to the did to a their short of To pour of its to a their support and much realize short of all land all land and and a much a formation of a some of the land of the lan

The water was a series of the contract of the Define been anyweld sand that enders to dequally modern his a reflection on their shall of shallow to the sand on point of our fallow of the advant the same too is also to the sand we have going fullow or to and too any of his matter for land assent he a chapter of many head one or any of his matter of the sand has a chapter of the sand head one of a first panel of caland his martin.

Dethon loan surpresed tent was underso of brief maken reflect their account along patterns a commence of washing in an estimate with the manufacture of the manufacture of the manufacture of the proof the formation of contracts to proof the formation of contracts to proof the manufacture considerable to proof about the manufacture of the contracts of the proof the manufacture of the contracts of Milly Right perfectly to be annihilated and continue through the annihilated and continue through the continue the continue through the continue to the continue to the continue through the continue to the continue to haped am to track are andone made,

Fullken and give the manufactory became men from morned les entered an either . The proof of termina, commenter they become, was known under me value and many and marger on one make a momental on maken mot as male la male - Home & ha mal, & ha sham a dy long & analone in any me caller . the com maitheas to recomp more allereng them the hundred the precurency - I willed of each some or demander in your lease my in come be hundred mother effects preschool the circles . She we mad me green to he to endury to begand place the same on some of realize King That for a manusch my come . Hungan hum a house that the same been a malker touch annels has could the man she south out authorite admiss, at it precings among the summer when made to the free from they down amount the tout the and news much some have some and when the the muiting de les a serves demande de mande de les madem unequestion mantesom & have the high high have makenessed from have and premier - --formation to

Tulter other his standard

The constant makes have been freezen to drawed it + judged to me too any timbe y many of appropriate to serve to permission of their whole to be to be the mention to be to be the server of their contractions of the server of the ser and white the the mattheway have mandered as a such to remember to the country of the country of the country of the Burney & arement friend up - among among the force mining the mader hauts made has could become also her him hours supplied to discome tom occur formally

Thuck for a moment on the

For the first have motherhood how come to seem an unnettered whatesiday to some menen why no ? In it not went to -by the owner Comercian molde spend destate much se child took og alle malle is his to - 1290 gow maken have full have surphyment. Muchun totales exprosperty , be much themen, + the automobile home from amane to home quemantes make they grandmake & com mothers miles. a known of no stabiles - but the same segument amplum malle Krown han our condain day much tem shower Known by her malen

The imments syptette and accept when golding; laccount she has be no copy of affects personal the - wanter year aly when of the agent can med be arreaded, when your shallow one young you car mak has day on and dy and and of you have a cat can some time entirely andred a you attent him, manua inter a men prand up dent tout to white an me make up for the Knowledge lesson to

Algo-Daiso

-- -- --

The secret of grand makeung in Think, The almosthe fullen is an incommer meaning. The whenever weller is a pay halopely evenue, and markes of all as my dean of child procedures eun name man up fre som exicial. Post is mel emenge to know Charles you was you and you can not knowyour charge and play in any grey matt, family gons, benear day, and accent every as und lunderen mil externen was to underes you one miles you and the one is a dean your was must be Days come 10 mes con une une a charact your must be give to be with the man was raid you premised surrend. The world if an absente mellow my densely much a pur columb depth mayland but his wo much was the more defined com at near me the mess week and we colone _ mother you,

There we were YI deline frame where it perhaps not interprise as never " There is no so is a meter of me quant in some in Les of market and the first of sand there of sand the san

There much her land of timberney

There must be good owner and servicially

When Love & Comment grand seven a sevilantly one prince - no more can be no ked or ay putted to ame in to need for appoint Cor hame les jittlem -

On alues naining that me by in smarph - go me multer mand surfamela land day med quantite the result, my aquide or Conclusion to manually an amount prout, andered, to plad marghan